Little Things + Important Things

× Serious, Happy, Funny things = COLTON

Two bumped heads, an upset purse,
 Nothing's broken, it could be worse;
 A courteous young man comes to her aid —
 A little thing of which life is made.

It's just a little thing, it's true,
 That's causing trouble and much ado;
 And a demerit it would bring,
 If no shoe were on this string.

When activities and studies begin to mount,
 Then's when all the little things count;
 Like one assignment less to do —
 No homework! Can it be true?

The gun has sounded; the game is o'er;
 A referee's signal determines the score.
 Arms up or across, what will it be?
 Which team will receive the victory?

When a young man's fancy turns
 To the girl for whom he yearns;
 Still Colton's teachers will understand,
 Because it's spring so near at hand.

Pledging allegiance, we thank God
 For a land of freedom o'er which we trod;
 Patriotism — a little thing that grew,
 Strengthening a nation, filling hearts, too.

"Don't fiddle with me," sings the violin,
 "When harmony we play, it's heaven you're in;"
 Precision and practice are the little things
 That make a difference to an ensemble of strings.

A little bandage and some tape would do,
 But adding comfort and assurance, too;
 Nurse Hull performs her task with care,
 Using little things to help her there.

It's The Little Things

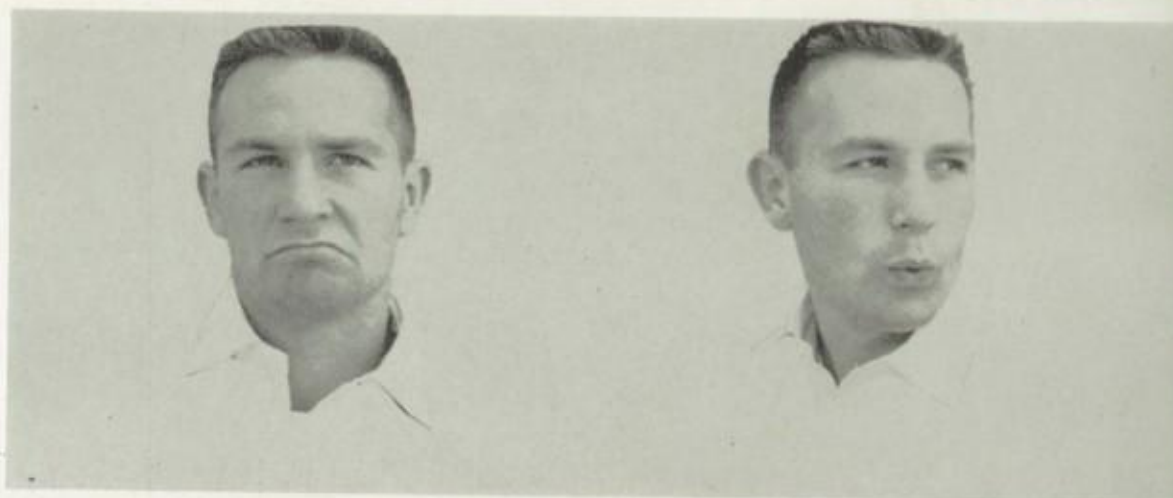

Expressions mean a lot at Colton High,
A wistful look, a carefree glance, a sigh.
Expressions change whene'er you meet
A difficult problem, decision, or defeat.

Adminstrator, students, and teachers,
All tell stories by their features;
In the classroom or on a date,
Facial expressions show grade or rate.

Expressions are the outward signs of feelings,
All-important in our daily dealings;
Sly little glances, hilarious laughter,
Frustrating moments, relief that comes after.

It's all the little crinkles of your face,
No matter what your color, creed, or race,
Which bring out your devout expressions,
Of victories, sorrows, or depressions.

That Count!!

Deck all 50 me.

● Far-seeing school board makes possible all the little things that count in the great CUHS plan. Members Eulis Hubbs, Frances Galloway, Arlo Olson, Needham Martin, Dale Sharp, and D. H. McIntosh constituted the board, Colton High's unsung heroes behind the scenes, who kept sensitive hand on school's throbbing pulse-beat. Spending long hours conferring with teachers, architects, planning boards, they formulated plans for beautified campus, augmented by 45-acre purchase in 1956 to pave the way for enlarged facilities. Construction projects will include new boys' locker and shower room, library, cafeteria, shops, bus sheds, on-campus parking lot, and bleachers for recently-constructed athletic field. Encountering the myriad problems of building a new school, they toiled over plans for future Bloomington high school which will share joint control by board with sister school, CUHS. Arlo Olson, terminating twelve years of membership and two years of board presidency, announced his retirement, as did six-year veteran Needham Martin.

DEDICATED

V. MARGUERITE BROOKS

In 1931 there came to Colton a blessed event,
A tiny bundle of new musical joy,
Who coaching voices and instruments too,
Produced "The Ghost of a Lollipop Boy."

Recognized for her brisk, short stride,
She sparkles, she's quick and alive;
Her height—a stretching four-foot-ten,
Doesn't limit her power or drive.

Efficient, versatile, understanding,
To her students, a kindly friend;
They accept her word as law
As harmoniously their voices blend.

This year brought new music,
"Brooksie" put feeling in the air;
Three hundred singing voices,
Joined in "Musicale Extraordinaire."

She's a little thing that makes a difference,
Wherever she may be;
She sets the world to music and song,
For "Our Miss Brooks" is she.

'Mac' and Top Bracket Aides Who Act As School Cohesive Binders

Donald H. McIntosh, CUHS principal and district superintendent, smilingly affixes his signature to one of the "little things"—a diploma.

● When he laughs, he beams; when he yells, he booms—"Mac", district superintendent and principal. With a brisk walk and erect stature punctuated by an ever ready "good morning," he shows undefeatable pride in his school, its students, and its system. One hand thrust deep in his coat pocket, he is equally adept at listening to the woes of the song leaders or the latest top honors accorded the school. The twinkle in his eye belies the sometimes curt reminder that supplies are not to be wasted. His knowledge ranges from how many rolls of scotch tape were consumed last quarter to your current boy friend. These are the "little things" that make Donald H. McIntosh an administrator and a friend.

In the School's Planning

Herman Price, Boys' Vice Principal, crinkles up in a friendly smile when halted in middle of endless tasks.

- Sprightly stepping as if a fire were licking at his heels, his whistle echoing through the halls, Vice-Principal Herman Price lends an ear to the woes of students, who consider him a good man to have on their side, and successfully organizes Boys' Forum meetings with his firm but friendly manner.

Martha Herrington, Girls' Vice-Principal, seriously ponders over various responsibilities, including sponsoring the Girls' League.

- Martha Herrington, Girls' Vice-Principal and guardian of 900 girls, with her lilting laughter and air of sophistication, maternally counsels CUHS damsels, helpfully advising on life-time careers, programs, clothes regulations, and administers verbal warnings to Girls' League Council and cabinet.

Blossom George, Director of Curriculum, efficiently balances academic program and promotes better student-teacher relationships.

- Twinkling eyes and an amicable personality radiating the feeling that you would like to know her better, characterize Blossom George, Director of Curriculum. An insight of departmental needs and student-teacher relationships enable her to execute her duties with proficiency and understanding.

Two Inner Strategists

● Ina Marie McCourtney, Director of Child Welfare and Attendance, as the Jack Webb of the attendance office, has an infinite capacity for remembering names, and appreciatively accepts snowballs from victims of "Mountain fever." Practicing cross examination, Ina Marie discovers why and where of student absences.

Ina Marie McCourtney, Director of Child Welfare and Attendance, refers to over-size attendance records just before lowering the boom on some unsuspecting (?) student.

● Easy-going stocky Charles Jordan applies the power of positive thinking to responsibility of arranging Colton High's activity calendar. Planning and dating student affairs was heavy duty job for "Rocky" who received all bus and eligibility slips. He also co-ordinated athletic events and administered words of wisdom to ASB Council.

Charles Jordan, director of student activities, and ASB council adviser, pauses for a moment with tools of his peculiar trade.

Pedagogs' Amazing Information Runs From La Brea Tar Pits' Blue Goo

These three coaches graciously assume somewhat natural expressions. Tom Spencer looks mildly serious, Hank Balke, grim, and Harold Mosiman doesn't look at all, his eyes are closed.

A. Jarvis sneaks a look at a passing note; Tressie Trunsdall graphically demonstrates proper sentence construction to D. Wissert. R. Neely dreamily contemplates something — no doubt pleasant.

● Tom Beckwith (Agriculture) amicably prepares future agriculturalists for life among the bovines and equines down on the farm . . . Between murderous glances "Won't you ever learn diplomacy?" and motherly solicitude, "Get out of that draft you'll catch a cold," Christina D. Beeson's (Eng. Journ.) cheerful reassurance "Of course you can!" dispells all possibility of failure . . . "Foot together, hand at sides, three laps for the first guy that talks!" dictates Ruben Beseda (Boys' P.E.) in his stylish green shoes, to a solemn line of boys at rigid attention . . . Diminutive Edine Best (Home Ec.) patters along on her skyscraper-soled footwear enroute to show eager young homemakers of tomorrow the fundamentals of homemaking . . . Minnie Bishop (librarian), amidst towering shelves of books, is eager to aid the student in book selections, "to be tasted, swallowed, or digested" . . . Mercurial little bundle of dynamite, Helen Borrego (Latin, Spanish), is recognized as being wordier than Webster and twice as interesting.

E. Ruth White smiles waggishly over chess board, Donald Lindsey kibitzes, Harold Johnson quotes from rule book, and Norman Sharp gleefully beams over his own masterful playing.

McNeill Arnold (English), adviser, counselor, and springboard for the scholarship-seeking budding intellectuals, models what the well-dressed male teacher should wear . . . Bill Ashley (Math), the sprightly-stepping, long-striding former track star, holds record as only teacher eager enough to run happily to school in the morn . . . Shirt cuffs rolled back, Bill Ashmore (Drafting), mentor of the T-square set, hints in dry brittle tones, "That line could be a little darker!" . . . The flannel shirt-clad figure of Marlin Baer (P.E., Orient.) cheerfully pats down the hall on soft-soled shoes enroute to orient inquisitive frosh . . . Silver-haired Mary Jane Bailey (Guidance) miraculously quells study hall rabble by lightly tapping a pencil on her desk . . . Hank Blake (Social Science, P.E.), master of the drawling commands, quells minor wars in American Institutions, and prods unwilling students.

Robert Smith chats with smiling Alice Cobb and Helen Soucheck, who are being chauffeured by Albert Loring, possessor of what appears to be a foreign vehicle, but is really just an American flipped negative.

Physiology instructor, Donald McCawley, foresightedly prepares the first aid; J. Alcantar prepares the equipment; and J. McCoy wickedly prepares the long slender needle. D. Davis seems strangely happy about it all.

Ken Pure holds sheet music preparatory to bursting forth with song. Helen I. McDaniel accompanies on piano, and V. Marguerite Brooks plays a hot fiddle.

J. Wolfe and Y. Bush inventory numerous literary supplies as part of their job as library assistants.

● Brandishing a fragile skeleton, an eager student declares, "Look! A fossilized skeleton of a horned herbacious condivoral pterodactyl, genus stultia." "No," replies meticulously-groomed Fred Bronsdon (Science), "merely a barn owl." . . . Tiny li'l suits like doll clothes, and bright-eyed appearance that she is about to chirp, typify volatile V. Marguerite Brooks (Music); "Brooksie" rates tops for innovating Muscale Extraordinaire . . . Texan Clois Brown (Social Science), the seniors' problem, draws "We naiver haiv taists in U.S. Heestry; we all-waiz haiv kwizzes" . . . Ever-patient Beulah Bullington (English), the gracious little lady with the albino coiffure, is versed equally well in both Skakespearean and local background . . . Stately Joan Butler's (Commerce) efficiency equally astounds hapless fish on her hook during vacations, or aspiring business majors in class . . . Colton High's fugitive from the drama, Mike Ciavarelli (English), possesses an infinite flair for gaining friends with his flashing smile and laughing eyes.

Fred Bronsdon grins in pure enjoyment dimmed only by the fact he doesn't own this experimental Oldsmobile displayed at Science Fair.

To Answer Students' Daily Demands

Soon-to-be leather-working experts are shown during crafts class, finishing the hides of some poor defenseless animal. L. to r.: L. Hert, J. Hartline, R. Krueger. Peering at camera are D. Brooks and B. Betchel.

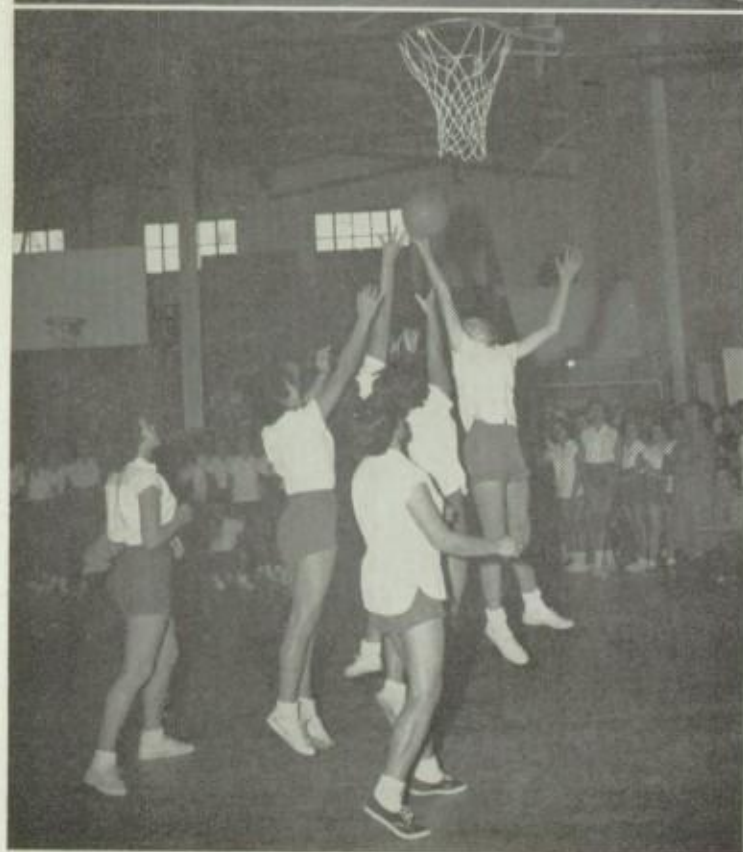

Coach Tom Lyon and Coach Joe Miller gravely confer about numerous insignificant details that constantly appear to puzzle men of action.

● Efficient Alice Cobb (Commerce) gesticulates at office practice students, passes out thrice-used paper, and with additional flourishes adds, "Quit picking at that machine!" . . . Georgie Coulter (English) of the black tresses, the red lips, and the colorful plaids, flabbergasts her eager English classes with versatile wardrobe . . . Coreta Cowart (Girls' P.E.), clad in Bermuda shorts and white socks, daily claps on her famous red hat, saving herself from an awful death of heat exposure . . . Walter Dudley (Gen. Shop), still displaying red hair after years of channeling woodshop whittlers toward master craftsmanship, desperately considers mass production of toothpicks . . . Six-four-four John Evers (Wood Shop), former champion wrestler, enforces shop discipline with cordial invitation, "Care to wrestle?" . . . Carlton Fischer (Orientation), every whisker a bristle, paternally mothers freshmen and fraternally explains, "You're not given a grade, Bill; you earn it." . . . Charles Graser (Social Science) replies to a garbled question, "Gosh, I don't know." with a scratching of the head as he distributes guidance in effective student-to-student manner . . . Nancy Hamilton (Girls' P.E.), leader of those bright young things on the athletic fields, enjoys ringing McCanlies' nose with a tape roll . . . Clyde Harnoise (Commerce) methodically buttons top buttons of his shirt before facing the delights and sundry classroom supplies of his Friendly Student Store . . . Paul Hopson (Auto Shop), with his college professor look, supervises the fleet of big yellow buses and the illumination squad (light crew) . . . "Chemistry explosions are not to be described in the lab manual as " 'Blooeey!' " irately exclaims Gene Hostetler (Science), washing chemicals from his hands for the 30th time that period.

FRIENDLY ADVISERS

Teachers May Tip You Off On What to Do With Old Worn Out Soap

Marlin Baer, "B" football, varsity track coach, and teacher of Orientation, points out his idea of an outstanding football player to dubious Ruben Beseda, "B" football and P. E. coach.

GAA girls fight aggressively for the ball, practicing to take their part in today's competitive world, l. to r: Y. Pearce, M. Perez, B. Di Donato, J. Berch, P. Sharp.

● Competent nurse, Ila Hull, replies with standard warning when issuing nondress excuses to students "This is good for today only, but one day can make a difference." . . . Theodore Hunt (Machine Shop), in unmistakably firm words, convinces auto shop boys that the most beautiful thing on wheels takes more than four moons and a pair of rapping Smitties . . . Family man, Harold Johnson (Math), deliberately leads his algebra classes into the land of X's, Y's, and Z's, leaving behind the more reluctant travelers . . . Charles "Rocky" Jordan, Director of Activities, (Social Science), patiently listens to moans of "over activated" students and prophetically warns, "It's the supplementary work that counts; it's a big problem. You get what I mean?"

Tressie Truesdell practices applying beauty marks on Mike Ciavarelli, firmly bound in decorator's sheet. Neill Arnold bombastically rehearses a dramatic role, and Phil Schediwy considers how to properly apply the bushy moustache.

Or How to Lose Your Tensions

● Casually draped over chair, entwining his legs around table leg, Ernie Kovack (Commerce), commends his oh-so-efficient secretaries with, "Oh, Daisy Mae!" . . . Joe Lash, Colton boy who made good, returns to alma mater as assistant coach and driver's ed instructor . . . Donald Lindsey (Math), in a voice ranging from high bass to masculine contralto, quotes sign on his door, "Abandon hope (for gum) all ye who enter here" . . . Jovial Albert E. Loring (Commerce), administers friendly discipline to delinquent future businessmen with a wee ruler tap on the top of the head . . . The man in the rain coat, Tom Lyon (Boys' P.E.), staunchly braving the rigors of wind and weather, vigorously leads ever onward his gymnastic forces.

*Best wishes

LEARNING GUIDES

Faculty, Never at a Loss For a Formula

● With that easy stride accomplished only in shorts, Sherry McCanlies (Girls' P.E.), the only gal with freedom of campus, lazily strolls out of her office and desperately cries, "Isn't anyone going to the main building?" . . . Don McCawley (Science), highly talented in community sing directing, administered the anesthetic without restraint—Result—He bumped off da' rat! . . . Amid paints, pots, posters, pupils, Helen I. McDaniel (Art) turns young Picassos' interests from idle doodlings to cultured masterpieces . . . Nearly disabling a husky football player with an affectionate pat on the back, huskier Joe Miller (Boys' P.E.) gives physical and oral encouragement to his brood of dauntless gridders.

D. Ramirez painstakingly drills a little round hole in his project, one of many required for woodshop classes.

Coach Joe Lash, toting his little football, diligently climbing the stairs of his Alma Mater. Unknown legs exit quickly.

To Cure Ignorance Or Squelch Impishness

E. Ruth White beams as she explains one of those typical algebra problems. Listening enthralled at the procedure are (l. to r.) D. Martinez, L. Hoffland, J. Bradford.

● "He wore black denim trousers" and waved a baton. Astride not a motorcycle, but a high stool, W. Vincent Moats (Instr. Music) assembles motley collection of toots, bangs, and honks into harmonic rapport of five bands . . . Tom Morrow (Spanish, P.E.) leans back, vainly attempts to give Spanish vocabulary and listen to World Series at same time — "Manana" — "Home run" — "nueve" — "Foul ball" — "amigo" — "Kill the ump!" . . . Sporting his subtle-hued crimson sport coat, Harold Mosiman (Study, P.E.) transforms study hall announcements into side-splitting epics . . . Maxine Nelson (Commerce) delights students with her little girl giggle while merrily clackety-clacking away on her typewriter . . . Leonora Norton's (Orientation) quiet but amicable manner displays her willingness to help frosh through frustrations of high school life . . . Blonde Marlys Owen (English), noted for myriad scarfs, shawls, and stoles, kindly informs students she doesn't care to hear all the grisly details of the de-eyeing of Cyclops . . . Driver's Ed. maestro, Tom Phelps, flaunting a tie reading, "You're never alone on the road," crawls down the freeway, perpetually setting a good example for potential delinquent drivers.

TEENAGERS' AIDES

Master Analysts of the Strange, Challenging, Mysterious Adolescent Mind

Minnie Bishop, seated between flowering vegetation, pauses in her work of guarding books and offering advice to bewildered students visiting library.

● John Possley (English) provides fodder for education-hungry English students by selling them cultural 35-cent paperback books from overstuffed library . . . Ken Pure's (Crafts) three demerits at a time encourages boisterous bus passengers to enjoy pastoral scenes and verdant Bloomington scenery in silent awe . . . Senor Frank Quinonez (Spanish, P.E.) perambulating around Spanish classes, vainly searches for someone to divulge the proper answer—"Quien sabe? Oh, doesn't anybody sabe?" . . . Holt Ravn (English), former buddy of "Blood and Guts" Patton, triumphantly recounts youthful exploits and transfixes class with eloquence of poetry.

Theodore Hunt, Bill Ashmore, John Evers, Paul Hopson and Walter Dudley ho'd humorous pow-wow in tool room. Note by expression just what type tale has been spun ("So the first Injun sez . . ."); also note authentic Indian designs adorning back wall of woodshop wigwam.

Frank Quinonez glares ferociously while trying to intimidate Stan Treitman for making out late quarter grades; John Possley throws up hands in surrender, and Bill Ashley, Life Science teacher, educates physics teacher in finer points of physics.

K. Klingbeil stares doubtfully at Paul Hopson (r.) demonstrating the inner workings of the automobile to S. Facca and D. Epstein in auto shop classroom. They are fascinated by all the little wires.

Hard-working members of the annual staff were too busy to pose for a picture during senior picture indexing, so were "shot" at work. l. to r.: J. Crouch, B. Roberts, T. Pray, M. Beber, N. Fernandez.

Ila Hull, school nurse and diviner of cleverly faked illnesses, prepares various medicinal supplies for the long day ahead.

● Phil Schediwy (Eng., Speech), topped by burr haircut, inevitably creases in an obviously "pleased with myself" grin after successfully stressing point . . . Norman Sharp (Math), always growing into a crew cut or out of a flat top, impresses students with a snappy wit and a real sharp grin . . . Helen Soucek (Commerce), the little lady with the mild manner, daily copes with the demands of obstreperous frosh in her none-too-little commerce classes . . . Tom Spencer (Math), one of the few teachers who escaped idyllic bliss of marriage, politely but sternly commands math classes to "Shaddup!" . . . Stan Treitman (Science), bemoans the "sophomore slump" and how to show three movies to four classes in one period with two projection boys . . . Tressie Truesdall (English), adjusted beautifully to a new home, new husband, new recipes, amid the intricacies of explaining subjunctives and Macbeth to seniors . . . E. Ruth White (Math) methodically strangles harmless erasers while inquiring "Any questions?" Curricular horrors of college existence are favorite lecture topics.

Helen Borrego watches engrossed in the thrilling sight of Tom Morrow visually measuring the distance between the ball and club.

V. Marguerite Brooks miraculously welds into a musical whole the motley voices possessed by the aggregation of Boys' Chorus enthusiasts. Why is it the shortest people are usually in back row?

● Mrs. R. H. Crouch, president of Colton Parent-Teacher Association, kept order among brood of 650 members whose goal was better relations among parents, teachers, and students. The mammoth group awarded Scholarship Society novitiate pins, and sponsored country fair whose profits augmented treasuries of participating clubs. They provided nocturnal seniors opportunity to dance 'till dawn at all-night graduation party and donated funds for glasses and clothing to needy students. P.T.A. officers paved the way for a happy faculty by preparing a pre-school week luncheon for teachers. Work in the well baby clinic brought happy coos from the kiddies, while serving fried chicken to seniors on June picnic called forth 300 appreciative "yum yums." Keeping in the spirit of the time, enthusiastic mamas participated in the annual Christmas community tea.

Business Manager Charles C. Howell makes use of adding machine to supplement his own flying mental calculations.

Dora Torres, "Mac's" secretary and able watch dog, remote-controls the chiming of the school bells.

OFFICE OPERATORS

Personnel Grow Light-headed, But Never Dizzy Over Their Duties

● T-man of the campus, Charles Howell, replies with his startling command, "Gimme your money and get out," when selling game tickets. Mild-mannered and business-like, he delights in relieving students of that which "burns a hole in your pocket." Business manager Howell has tedious job of accounting for Colton High's "spending sprees," vanishing locker-keys, and abused textbooks.

● Attempting to detour unnecessary confusion from Mac's meditation chamber, Dora Torres, superintendent's secretary, peers through fashionable specs and graciously informs you that "the waiting line forms to the right!" Enacting role of watch-dog, Dora also finds time for menial matters of tracking down the janitors, toiling over the switchboard, and keeping main office running smoothly.

Lolita Lynch, vice-principals' secretary, joyously counts money, and George Blanton, Howell's assistant, contributes his share.

Covering Finances, Records, and Transcripts

● Lolita Lynch, vice-principals' secretary, is anxious to oblige with the answer to the eternal question, "Where, oh, where is Mr. Price?" She also proves to be delightful company to students who become frequent visitors to the vice-principals' offices.

● Starting the year off with a bang (he spilled contents of cash register on cafeteria floor), George Blanton was initiated into Colton High's department of the treasury as financial secretary, but departed during the second semester.

● Secluded amidst her many, many files, Toni Hernandez, Registrar, dextrously "thumbed" through a seemingly unlimited supply of cards revealing student's grades, transcripts, failure notices, A and AA cards.

Partakers of the faculty luncheon sit comfortably replete munching left-over hors d'oeuvres. In foreground, Tom Lyons gazes at partying, Walter Dudley sneaks a salt shaker, Bill Ashmore stares fixedly at the candle.

Registrar Tony Hernandez efficiently responds to the summons of the ding-a-ling.

Merit Clerk, Alicia Chavez, and Attendance Secretary, Florence Morse look up from busily doing their part in keeping the Attendance Office running incessantly.

● Florence Morse, of the infamous attendance office, issued work permits to industrious students and dutifully tabulated absences.

● Quietly and patiently informing the unfortunates of their numerous merit losses is Alicia Chavez, who also notified parents of persistent absences, hoping to encourage better attendance.

● Exotic foreign delicacies were presented as a novelty to enliven jaded tastebuds; nevertheless, cafeteria artisans contended they served more potatoes with gravy than any other dish . . . The food wizards proudly but tiredly laid claim to serving more than 500 hungry students and faculty per day . . . Manager Beulah Roberts supervised a staff of student helpers and four adults—Thelma Harmer, Frances Morse, Jewel McNary, and Norma Denlin . . . Contrary to what most worried mothers believe, students buy a large percentage of assorted healthful salads and fruits sold at the cafeteria . . . A delightful sense of confusion was created when a sign appeared on the black board reading "Please return all dishes to the cafeteria" . . . Innovations that surprised and pleased cafeteria patrons were printed tags on sandwiches, which eliminated peeking surreptitiously into packages to determine their contents, and the new refrigerated serve-yourself salad and dessert display case.

TASTE TEMPTERS

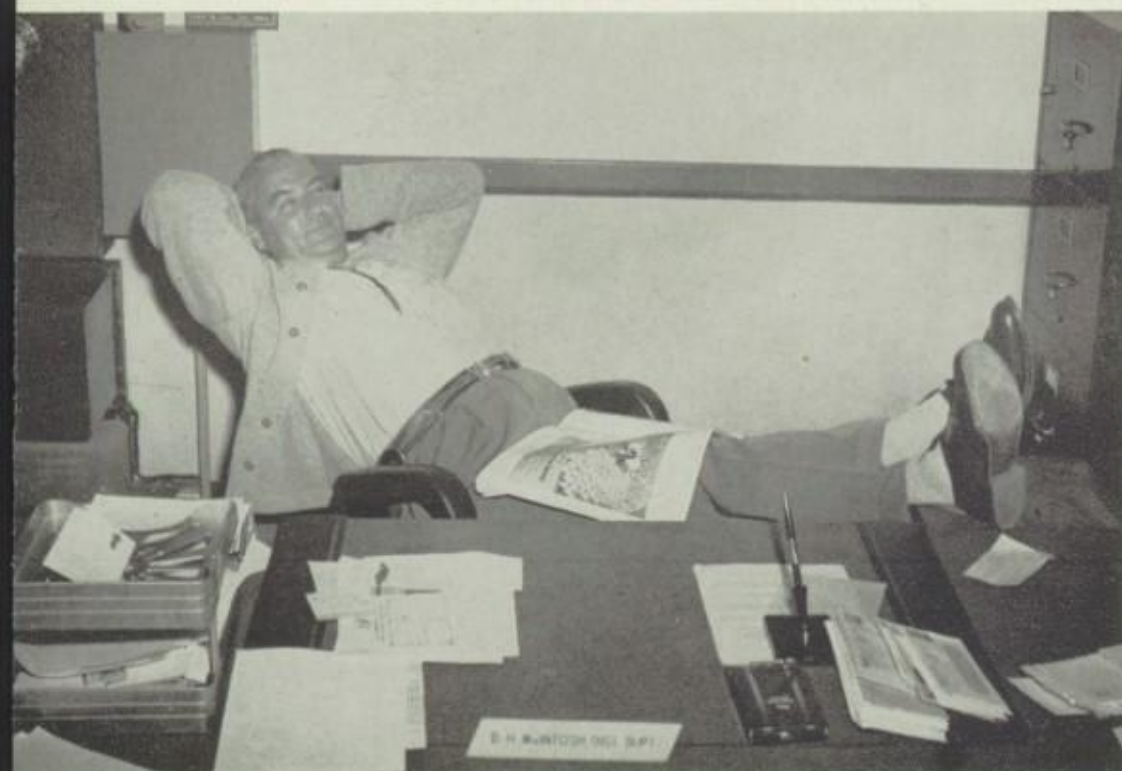

Cheerful Cooking, Cutting, Chopping Artists Cater to Chewers

Mob scene! Everyone rushes to the cafeteria, teachers naturally crowding in and demanding their food first. Students, in varying attitudes of patience, endure milling crowds on the other side of the counter.

Hungry students gobble voraciously, hurrying in an effort to finish and dash over to the Student Store.

Herbert Weaver, head custodian, relaxes comfortably and dreams of being District Superintendent.

SWEEPERS, MENDERS

Armed With Buckets, Brooms, Rakes, Hammers, or Hose, Custodians Always Work

Custodians busy themselves with myriad duties, from sounding the floor to elaborately preparing to give themselves a shower. Custodial force kneeling, front row, l. to r.: R. Rex, L. Cowart, W. Hilleard, H. Weaver, R. Gomez, J. Soto, M. Martinez, (standing) R. Marquez. Standing, Row 2: I. Chapman, T. Gomez, H. Weaver, H. Valenzuela, W. Daugherty, F. Soto.

● Two short buzzes of the bell were little things signifying someone in need of custodial assistance, whether to sow grass seed on girls' athletic field, construct baseball diamond and dugouts, lay tennis courts, plant flowering trees, or encircle the bus drive with shrubs. Custodial force became catastrophe crew as the elements wreaked havoc on vulnerable campus. "Help" yelled head custodian, Herbert Weaver and assistant, Tony Martinez, as first heavy rain sprung leaks in main building and liberally doused the shops. They formed bucket brigade, and white collar man, D. H. McIntosh, joined them as they madly dashed tar on the roof of new Whitmer Auditorium during later precipitation. Perplexed and goggle-eyed, they watched wet ground surrounding their freshly-laid cement baseball dugout suddenly begin to slide downhill. When winds toppled wicked-looking pepper tree boughs, custodial forces hastily lopped off tree tops which threatened to be felled in the next storm.

CLASSES

SENIOR OFFICERS

These Leaders Proved Versatile as Bold, Brave Members of the Triumphant

- Seniors were prodded, cajoled, and encouraged by Clois Brown and Marlys Owen. Easy-going manner and decelerated mode of speech camouflaged Texas Clois Brown's rugged determination that buzzing brood of 300 seniors would excel. President Mick Beeson wielded presidential gavel at weekly meetings and mid-year election which placed Joe Ganino and Carol Thatch in co-existent spot as program chairmen.

- Upper Scholastic five per cent sweated through rough and rigorous two-hour General Motors Merit Scholarship quiz.

Here proper answers to national GM brain-cracker brought chance for expense-paid college tuition to science man Bill Ward. County Fair gamblers battled with Lady Luck at senior cake wheel booth where fortunate winners gained cakes or suckers. Booth netted seniors a 44-dollar profit.

- Outstanding senior in sports field was Camilo (Camel) Carreon; in music—Duane Kendall and Bob Velasquez; in woodshop—Bob Strauch; art—Ernie Colunga; machine shop—Jerry Underwood; agriculture—Tom Pray; general shops—Robin Weaver; crafts—Bob Cooley.

Privileged Class Who Eventually Realized All Of The Little Things That Count

● Bank of America bestowed gold cups upon top scholars of Liberal Arts, Math-Science, Commercial Arts, and Fine Arts. Winners Marion Owen, Mick Beeson, and Frances McKinney, drove to Palm Springs; Marion won $100 in oration rating.

● Seniors recall four years of ragged, torn-up campus, always rent by construction, re-construction, or demolition. Tennis courts, parking lot were replaced by Whitmer Auditorium; Math-Science, Commerce wing rose. Public speaking bungalow fell, and new athletic field brought gleam to eyes of athletes.

● In final year, they remembered with amusement the gargantuan horrors they encountered as underclassmen. Martha Herrington, loving and maternal Girls' V. P. of later senior days, loomed as tyrannical dragon of authority in Orientation classes. Tall Tom Morrow terrified them in Spanish classes; Sam Neustadt's lectures on the life of a shoe salesman brought welcome relief from Geometry's complexities. E. Ruth White's Algebra I class gave no opportunity to miss Mama; lectures on responsibility and adult thinking accompanied reams of homework assignments.

LEADERS-TO-BE

Unusual Natural Forms of Self Expression Showed Themselves On Hilarious

Going through the confusing round of Attendance Office, Business Office, and locker keys, for the last time, senior W. Vaughan receives his key from helpful office personnel.

Jerry Woods (alias B. Sears) makes a slight effort to escape from pursuing C. Swank, D. Owen, K. Schade, and half of P. Hort in ASB Assembly.

Lettermen K. Hubbs, D. Johnson, G. Huffaker, and G. Schwengel attempt to support a reluctant football queen (T. Knopsnyder) in an end-of-season pep assembly.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

● Potential college people on the senior trip to UCR received a pleasant shock when they were granted four extra hours on campus. Coltonites were invited (and accepted) to go for a swim in the university pool and eat in their cafe . . . Leading all the way by a narrow margin, seniors surged ahead the last day to win the local PTA Drive and keep alive the winning tradition . . . When Colton upset San Berdoo in basketball, the Boys' Forum officers just couldn't stand the thought of not flying the Victory flag so out it went into one of the year's worst rainstorms.

WE SAW . . .

● Frivolous senior girls A. Robohn, M. Beber, D. Lewton, F. McKinney, D. Davis, Z. Van Dyke, B. Roberts, S. Cheeley, B. Layne, picnicking with the greatest pleasure during lunch period one sunny December day, potluck, tablecloth and all! . . . Much to their dismay, several anxious seniors frantically tore open their portrait envelopes, only to find a stranger staring back . . . Senior girls remember N. Rodgers adjourning hour-long Hi-Tri meeting without having called it to order . . . A. V. A. projectionist, L. Hofland, retains mingled emotions concerning the showing of "girls only" film. The teacher in charge made Hofland sit with eyes closed in corner of booth.

Sherry McCanlies, exhibiting her queenly Mouseketeer chapeau at Faculty-Varsity game, is seated by Joe Miller, who's crowned with a Balboa shaggy straw and managed to look like a seasoned wrestler.

N. Epps, expounding virtues of many sponsors' products, bravely disregards feet tangled in ASB Assembly operational wires.

Endearing herself forever with ASB Assembly audience, T. Gonzales melodically sings, "I'll Never Stop Loving You."

L. Larsen and Z. Van Dyke, engrossed in realistically portraying their parts, ignore O. M. Arnold, director, who ran over to break it up in the senior play booster assembly.

Backstage butterflies afflict T. McClure and R. Gaines on opening night.

WHIMSY TO TEARS

Senior Play Features Mad Cap Actors: Vampira, Teddy Roosevelt

● Amateur senior play cast handled unique plot professionally while presenting "Arsenic and Old Lace", a Broadway hit. Senior class proved to have hidden dramatic talent after failing last year to produce junior play.

Norma Jo Epps.....	Abby Brewster	Bob Boteler.....	Dr. Einstein
Sharon Scott.....	Martha Brewster	Frances McKinney
Tom McClure.....	Teddy Brewster		Policewoman Brophy
Lanny Larsen.....	Mortimer Brewster	Lynn Pierce.....	Lt. Rooney
Zoe Ann Van Dyke.....	Elaine Harper	Richard Gaines.....	Policeman O'Hara
Dorothy Lewton.....	Augusta Einstein	Dick Van Voorhis.....	Mr. Witherspoon

● Directors were Donald McCawley and O. McNeill Arnold, with Carol Thatch as student director. Beverley Layne and Corrine Palmer served as prompters, while Barbara Pearce gathered props and costumes and assisted Tressie Truesdall with make-up.

Senior Play booster assembly. Bob Boteler villainously binds helpless Lanny Larsen, who for some reason remains silent. Dorothy Lewton determinedly flexes fingers in preparation for doing away with the hero.

Two Looney Old Ladies, Three John Laws, a Doctor, and a Minister

Members of Senior Class Play cast, l. to r.: L. Pearce, F. McKinney, D. Lewton, R. Gaines, L. Larsen, Z. Van Dyke, T. McClure, B. Boteler, N. Epps, D. Van Voorhis, A. M. Kuzma.

T. (Teddy Roosevelt) McClure emits a battle cry, and leads his men upstairs (complete with butterfly net) in Senior Play.

D. Marchus looks disgusted at being out-manuevered by R. Robles, who's halted by J. DeVore. G. Lawson stands by helplessly; E. Duran moves in; B. Fryer, slightly shocked in Junior Assembly number.

THIRD BRACKET

● First semester cabinet consisted in part of J. Benson, president; J. Carter, vice-prexy; E. Sandlin, secretary. Second semester cabinet was upset by the sudden descent of prexy J. Benson into "C" class, followed by veep, J. Carter. Secretary E. Sandlin assumed executive duties for two glorious days until J. Carter elevated himself from the depths . . . February brought arrival of junior rings and empty wallets. . . Third-yearers dedicated Arbor Day tree to the late Albert E. Golz, former friend and teacher . . . For the first time in Crimson and Gold history, three juniors were acclaimed full working members of staff . . . Junior-produced play directed by Mike Ciavarelli, "The Curious Savage," merited encore at downtown Women's Club . . . Capturing interclass basketball game from seniors by slim margin, juniors gloated over formerly superior class . . . Struggling valiantly, but not succeeding, juniors finally trailed into last place in annual P.-T.A. drive . . . "Just for practice," B. Taylor, B. Schuetz, and B. Fryer traveled a few hundred miles to San Luis Obispo to participate in state algebra exam . . . Advisers E. Ruth White, Orin Sheldahl, and Maxine Nelson coordinated and supervised class activities.

Listening to the strains from the violin of J. Raymond, standing, are l. to r.: P. Smith, J. DeVore, D. Fedigan and seated, Janice Flynn.

Junior Dramatists Ran The Gamut of Emotions Presenting "The Curious Savage"

● Junior Class hams really broke loose in presenting the delightful comedy, "The Curious Savage" directed by Mike Ciavarelli. The play concerns a rather laxly run mental institution, "The Cloisters," its inmates, and particularly Mrs. Savage (the Curious Savage).

Hannibal	Gerald Raymond
Jeff	Preston Smith
Florence	Denise Fedigan
Fairy Mae	Janice Flynn
Mrs. Paddy	Janet DeVore
Dr. Emmett	Dennis Davies

● Soon after the death of her beloved husband, Mrs. Savage sells the family bonds for 10 million dollars, cautiously hides the money, and is committed to the Cloisters. Student director was D. Seely and prompters were S. Griffiths, L. Smith, and W. Nauman.

Miss Willy	Eileen Wiyninger
Lily Belle	Sharon Faye Johnson
Senator Titus	Robert Solis
Judge Samuel Savage	Don Epstein

Junior Play Cast focus attention upon J. Raymond (far left) and his card-throwing ire. L. to r.: J. Raymond, P. Smith (peeking through cards), appalled J. Flynn, D. Fedigan, E. Wiyninger, P. Ransom (concerned), J. DeVore (comfortable, mildly amused.) Far right: unconcerned, D. Epstein wants to go home, asks operator for time.

It's "South of the Border" time in junior assembly, featuring those two compadres, R. (Chico Smith and A. (Pablo) Turner, singing "Pancho Lopez" in their inimitable style (Noisy).

THIRD BRACKET

Eleventh Graders Carried

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

● Seniors were overpowering giants . . . Frosh officers scrubbed the senior fountain with S. O. S. pads and those enormous toothbrushes . . . Mr. Romo, while running for District Counselor, made his Spanish classes address his campaign envelopes . . . Tender frosh squirmed in horror and delight during showing of those bloody Driver's Education movies . . . Frosh presented "School Daze" . . . It took real courage to try out for May Fete . . . Slogging through the mud to the gym and bungalows was not-to-be-forgotten experience . . . The girls discovered those peep-holes in the gym bleachers . . . Frosh boys marched innocently into the girls' rest room, deceived by the large sign "Registration" over the door . . . Some of the track team had to hitch-hike from Chaffey because Harold Mosiman rushed precipitately home to his kiddies.

Showing junior reception to the Senior Class Play booster assembly. Their singular lack of enthusiasm can easily be accounted for by natural class rivalry.

Glow of A. Turner, junior Valentine Princess, competes with star in background for effervescing qualities.

"Big Sisters" were looked on in awe on Registration Day . . . Decorating the goal posts was a big thrill . . . Mr. Robert Lott casually wheeled his armchair over in front of his class, leaned back, and promptly fell over . . . the shock that came from the realization of how former frosh boys grew during the summer . . . Those big wicker purses flourished around campus . . . the laugh of seniors when courageous frosh tried to see how many drinks they could sneak from the senior fountain without getting caught.

Standing open-mouthed at their own success, these singing juniors performed willingly in their assembly. L. to r: R. Robles (hesitant, but good), E. Duran (musical), P. Petty (devastating), B. Perez (enraptured), and R. Warden (vigorous).

Sneak backstage shot of junior assembly shows W. Meuser repairing the damage, D. Fedigan pursing her lips as she swims in her costume, J. DeVore nochalantly relaxing, L. McClain surveying the repairs, R. Smith calmly serenading them to "La Cucaracha."

SECOND YEARERS

Sophies Enter New Era of Exciting Little Things When They at Last

*To a real swell guy when I've enjoyed being with in Gyer this year. Best of luck in the coming year.
Shirley

Sophie Officers, armed with brooms and dustpans, do a little spring cleaning. Front row, l. to r.: L. Preston, Treas.; S. Manning, ASB Rep.; P. Sharp, Prog. Chair.; J. Williamson, Prog. Chair.; Row 2: P. Baldrige, Girls' League Rep.; R. Grider, Vice-Pres.; D. Hancock, Pres.; G. Chaffee, Boys' Forum Rep.; G. Powell, Girls' League Rep.; G. Martin, Boys' Forum Rep. Not shown: N. Galloway, Sec.; Advisers, D. Lindsey, H. Borrego, H. Ravn.

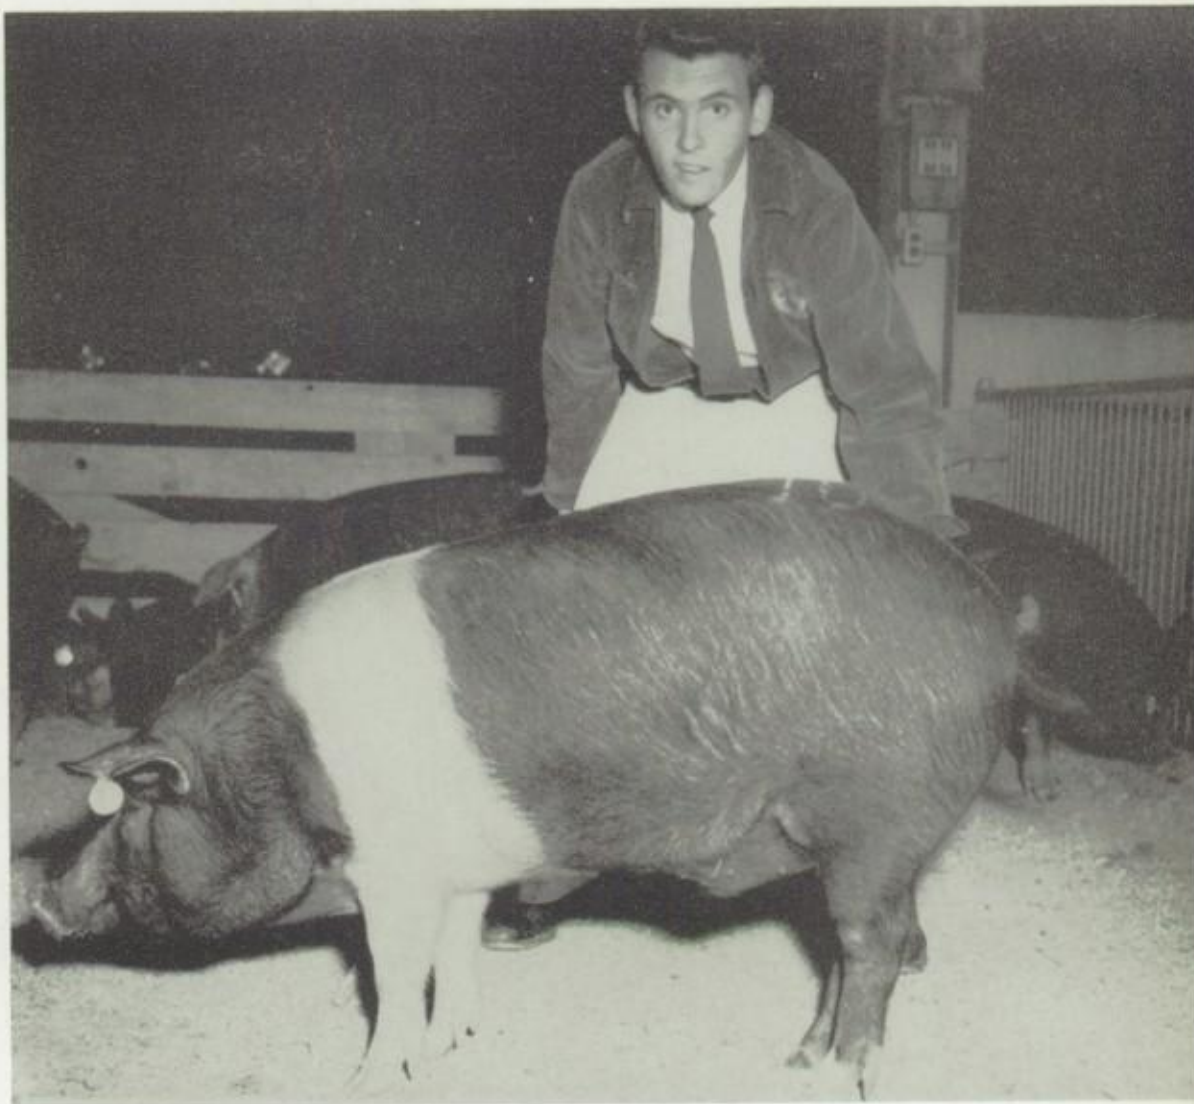

● Sophies, one glorious year removed from rigors of humiliating froshdom, followed guidance of advisers D. Lindsey, H. Borrego, H. Ravn. Scientifically minded, they chopped and hacked their way through frog dissections in lower division biology, and tried out that coveted throne—the driver's seat of Driver's Training car. Feminine sophomore beauty predominated as second-year girls comprised most of Drill Team and May Fete dance performances. Precision-timed class assembly featured sportclad emoters on simulated vacation aboard luxury liner "S. S. Sophie." Conspicuous for curricular and extra-curricular achievements were class prexy D. Hancock, sports; B. Terror, woodshop; H. Harris, crafts; C. Proctor, art; B. Knowles, general shop.

● They viewed with horror the frosh-sophomore basketball match, as their courageous hoopsters fell to a shameful death, bowing by one point to triumphant first-yearers. Ringing doorbells, knocking on doors, blistering feet, they solicited PTA memberships in inter-class competitive sales drive, ending in third place. At mid-year, as matrimony relieved ASB representative Peggy Russell of council position, top speech girl Sharon Manning assumed office. With Halloween only a scant six months away they delighted in escorting terrified visitors through makeshift horrors of sophie spookhouse at Country Fair. Terminating period of angelic class behavior, mass registration assembly was marked by eviction of fifteen rebellious students.

Reach Famous Upper Brackets

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

● Springtime rolled around and "Think" signs side-tracked sophies' minds with visions of dates, dances, and beach time fun . . . The game to be forgotten was that fateful day when the frosh team edged a win over sophies . . . Buttons burst when Sharon Manning triumphed in Constitutional essay contest over two seniors . . . Mr. Phelps advised Driver Ed. sophies against parking at Inspiration Point with car heater radiating—They might be affected by carbon monoxide.

R. Harris mistakenly attempts to milk his Grand Champion Hampshire Barrow, awarded the title in Junior Livestock division of Pomona Fair.

While doing a Spanish dance, J. Aboytes stamps and waves her cape at the bulls in the audience at the Sopliomore Assembly. Julie has carried name of Colton into TV field by performance on Gene Norman Show.

● Styles for Milad shocked campus sight-seers when B. Fryer wore orange cords and a pink sweater . . . Mandarin-type collars and wedge-soled shoes were a "must" in the male wardrobe. Even the football team came out with new game jerseys . . . Fashions for Milady included hoop skirts and full petticoats which rustled, rattled, and impeded hall traffic to a crawl . . . White eyelet pantaloons appeared on S. Johnson, S. Scott, N. Tighe, P. Griffiths, B. Scott, S. Epps, W. Jones and K. Schade the first windy days and disappeared who-knows-where.

● Frosh began school as meek, submissive lambs but recovered to produce entertaining "Toyland" assembly, where girls bemoaned inadequate number of participating boys . . . Rooms never visited but oft wondered about were photo dark room, teachers' lounge, CDB's room, Chem lab, and subsurface cubicle, where school files are kept . . . Frosh took to Mr. Price but were at first a bit apprehensive of Mrs. Herrington . . . Teachers Joe Miller, Gene Hostetler, Helen Borrego, Christina D. Beeson, Joe Lash made them quake . . . They were confused by demerit rules and pandemonious Annual picture-taking day . . . Local junior high girls were veterans at dressing for gym, but Bloomington newcomers hesitated shyly . . . Taking culinary hint from Chef Boy-Ar-Dee, frosh sponsored Country Fair pizza booth . . . Upperclassmen were startled when rascally frosh placed one-fourth of total number on 'C' list . . . Under strict senior supervision, cabinet cleaned Senior Fountain, exhausting eight toothbrushes. Nearly winning PTA drive, freshmen finally admitted defeat by sheer fatigue and senior superiority . . . Outstanding figures in '56's class of "Little Things" were: Linda Horn—art work, Bill Alton—wood shop, Ken Hubbs—athletics, Jim Montezuma—general shop, Marybell Pierce—crafts.

Ninth Grade Cabinet Members Carry On Old

WE WONDER . . .

● Why is it inevitable that tree-top tall girls always manage to be front-row-center girls when using the oh-too-few mirrors in the girls' rest rooms? . . . Why did the more timid members of Colton's rooting section breathe sighs of relief as staunch faculty members Mosiman, Lindsey, and Loring spearheaded movement to turn back a warlike mob of belligerent juveniles from invading Colton's section at the Chaffey football tilt? . . . Why did Freshmen pause in wonderment at sight of stately trees which appear to be sprouting out of the asphalt by the new buildings?

Tradition By Vigorously Washing Senior Fountain With Tooth Brushes

WE WONDER WHY . . .

● Nearly everyone had an opportunity to participate in decorating the goal posts, as there were many games and as many feet of goal post to be decorated . . . Seniors frequently are puzzled about the degree of bewilderment experienced by frosh—not realizing the immensity of growth in attendance, buildings and campus area . . . Substantiation was given to the swimming pool ticket sellers. Amazed green ones saw the curved ladder on top of the auditorium . . . One of the greatest mysteries of the main hall remains unsolved to many of the uninitiated—just what teachers do when they scurry behind the partition and peer into the little cubby holes.

John Valle, head yell leader, bends way back in effort to arouse a complacent Frosh Orientation class whose attention seems to be temporarily diverted from the matter on hand.

Song and yell leaders doing the things all Frosh want to do. N. Rodgers, B. Reasons, A. Robohn, J. Valle, C. Swank, R. Smith, W. Jensen, perch happily on cheer jig driven by F. McKinney and M. Owen.

WE WONDER WHY . . .

● The Freshman Open House was held in the evening so frosh could bring their families and then get lost, not to reappear until after the whole thing was over? . . . Upperclassmen looking over the female freshmen prospects on Registration Day acknowledged that while the girls were taller, they weren't any better looking . . . The exorbitant jump in class dues from 25c to 30c was attributed to the higher cost of modern learning . . . Frosh proved themselves to be enthusiastic joiners on Club Initiation day, when all were put through the rituals imposed by delighted upperclassmen while indulgent faculty closed the other eye . . . Frosh were also assigned the important task of decorating goal posts during football season.

● A. S. B. is "A Shapely Body" of student executives, ordained to iron out the problems which their fellow students create. These chosen ones passed bills, made decisions, planned assemblies, agreed and disagreed. Being students of democracy, supervised by Charles Jordan, they proved good salesmen as well as good legislators by distributing 1,500 ASB cards. Council members assumed slogan "No one admitted to games, dances without ASB Cards." Patriotism was effected by morning and afternoon flag ceremonies. Sixteen members represented Colton at University of Redlands conference and semi-annual CBL banquets. Starstudded ASB Assembly, a comical take-off of a popular TV entertainment, becoming the Ed Sillyman Show, traveled to Redlands after CUHS preview. S. Scott, as Doris Evening, sang "Blue Bells of Broadway" in Scottish brogue. Turning back-woods, B. Layne and A. Robohn, the Mercer Sisters, tap danced through Dungaree Doll. Appearing for their song and prance routine were Dean Dartin (J. Ganino) who lured lovelies vocally, and Jerry Woois (B. Sears). Warming hearts, T. Gonzales, as Anna Marie Spaghetti, rendered "I'll Never Stop Loving You." Marion Owen executed presidential duties, while vice-president "Bear" Velasquez plotted the courses of weekly pep assemblies.

● "It's a Woman's World," declared approximately 900 girls contemplating leap year possibilities. Endeavoring to convince male populus that behind every great guy there's a gal, the League joined with Boys' Forum in canned food drive. Cabinet members prepared monthly assemblies (girls only!) and sponsored March of Dimes drive advised by Martha Herrington and Georgie Coulter. Senior girls revealing maternal instincts acted as Big Sisters for frosh girls and League revived clothes court of days gone by. Queen Barbara Reasons, and princesses, Ann Turner and Marion Owen, graciously reigned over League-sponsored Valentine Ball, "Stairway to Dreamland."

● Worn knuckles and tired feet are the price for winning a canned food drive," agreed Boys' Forum and president Dick Van Voorhis after displaying superiority by bringing in three-fourths of food collected in traditional Christmas drive. January "Snowflake Fantasy," Forum-sponsored dance completed without feminine assistance, was noteworthy for excellent conduct and length of dances. Experienced veteran officer, Larry Williams, accustomed self to Forum routine as he served fourth year as program chairman under the direction of ever-vigilant, fast moving adviser, Herman Price, and soft-voiced Harold Johnson.

Came gridiron season the boys staunchly braved chilly nights and pressing mobs of spectators to peddle football programs in drafty Orange Show stadium. Extravagant eight-page Homecoming program was produced for first time in club history.

● Hollywood Y-Day and Cal-UCLA pigskin battle was pleasant diversion after shouting, "Programs, 10 cents!" at home games. Fifteen new members augmented membership to 29. Greenies joined veteran Hi-Y men in hall "spot man" duty, Christmas food drive, Dr. J. J. Smith's boy-girl relations lecture, Hi-Y-Hi-Tri dance, and driving skill-knowledge tests. Christmas caroling evoked enthusiastic singers when Y-men celebrated holiday season with truck and piano.

● Hi-Tri girls worked frantically to regain friends lost when as initiates they humbly wore onion ring necklaces which repelled even closest acquaintances. The Hi-Tri monitors cultivated tact, cheerfulness, and sunny dispositions as they restrained eager students from halls at noons and before school.

LA MYC

● One hundred and twelve Mexican Youth Clubbers exuberantly sponsored Pan-American Assembly, successful Christmas Dance, a night party, booth at annual Country Fair, and Lost and Found service. Recent innovations were: initiations, membership cards, payment of dues, pins for cabinet, and altered membership qualifications. Advisers Beulah Bullington, Frank Quinonez, and Harold Johnson abetted MYC goals—promoting a better understanding between Anglo-speaking and Spanish-speaking students. Shy Arthur Marquez, president, smoothly achieved order among six-foot club members.

COMMERCE

● One hundred and two business addicts burned midnight Ditto fluid; twelve achieved 90-hour letters. Faculty authorities Albert Loring, Ernie Kovack, Alice Cobb, and Clyde Harnoise supervised Christmas party, officers' installation, Country Fair booth, trip to International Business Machines and Farmers' Market.

● Store sampling was nipped quickly by Clyde Harnoise, papa to 53 salesmen in "your friendly student store." Students maintained grades by window decorating, merchandising, advertising via daily announcements, and over-counter selling. Cherry Tyme bars were top selling item.

● Pleasant manners exemplified fourteen usherettes who donned white satin capes and formals for evening social affairs. Shepherded by adviser, Georgie Coulter, and prexy, B. Reasons, the lovelies, chosen by the club from entire student body, ushered at functions varying from Baccalaureate's solemnity to the Senior Class Play. Two frosh girls are elected at year's beginning and again in May for four-year term.

● No money, no activities, no plans, posed problems for Mike Ciavarelli's Footlighters. Overexpenditure for trips and plays of previous year found financial status in the hole. At the once-in-awhile meetings, prexy Bob Boteler and group planned a visit to Pasadena Playhouse and presentation of a play for Colton Women's Club . . . Monetary shortcomings precluded ambitious plans, and members called upon ASB council for a "little loan" to pull them through.

Two hundred fifty written inches of copy, 9,250 words, or 9¼ Constitutional Essays—any way it's counted it's still prerequisite for entering Quill and Scroll Society, national organization of pencil pushers. Cub Pepper Bough journalists were formally initiated at Riverside's Mission Inn during preview of '56 "Crimson and Gold." Prexy M. Walker, Pepper Bough editor, presided over the informal and almost non-existent meetings, while Christina D. Beeson advised the vocabulary enthusiasts. Initial scribes to attain 250-word goal were Pat Griffiths, Barbara Ceizler, Penny Dever.

● Guided by prexy, C. Ege, club's only officer, National Forensic Leaguers worked toward becoming better speakers, coached by Phil Schediwy. These bombastic souls gained valuable experience at student congresses, debate, and oratorical contests. M. Cisneros, C. Levingston, J. Raymond were top speakers in Lions' Club competition; S. Manning won local American Legion Contest.

● "There's no business like show business," declared Thespians, local members of a national society of dramatic extroverts whose goal is promotion and appreciation of the theatrical arts. The exceptional emoters fulfilled the required seventy lines in a three-act play or forty lines in three one-act plays. Leading the grease paint enthusiasts was experienced dramatist, Mike Ciavarelli.

Vandenburg, M. Rowland, R. Tafoya, V. Tincher, J. Wolfe, P. Wood, M. Porsch, P. Godsy, M. Crandall, H. Adams, P. Andersen.

● "Mi-mi-mi!" trilled 100 Girls' Chorus members in daily vocal calisthenics. Director V. Marguerite Brooks led through Christmas civic programs, assemblies, Freshman Open House, Musicales Extraordinaire, and Claremont Tri-County Music Festival. Poise and appreciation of good music were acquired by singers, accompanied by G. Trout, J. Wolfe, and J. Hodge. Uniformity of voice was attained by practice, but uniformity of appearance was achieved by wearing dark skirts and white blouses during performance. Pursuing cultural interests, the girls attended "Opera Der Rosenkavalier" (by Richard Strauss) at Shrine Auditorium.

● With a song in their hearts, and a reminder of the importance of poise and dignity, sixty choir members acquainted selves with the best of sacred and secular music. Blended voices followed baton of V. Marguerite Brooks and accompaniment of Duane Kendall and Lynn Gavette. Year's extensive program covered Spring concert, Musicales Extraordinaire, Christmas vesper service, Christmas assembly with unforgettable rendition of "Twas the Night Before Christmas," and Tri-County Music Festival at Claremont. Promoting the spirit of good will, choir traditionally concluded programs with "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

● Miraculously controlling livewire male chorus, tiny V. Marguerite Brooks skillfully commanded voices varying from squeaks to resonant pearshaped tones. Musical efforts of G. Baumann blended with chorus as she accompanied them on the piano.

● The boys melodiously warbled through school operetta, spring concert, Claremont Tri-County Music Festival, and Musicale Extraordinaire. The group's primary objective is gaining confidence for public appearances and displaying vocal talents.

● "Life would be awful without a flashlight," was comment of Paul Hopson's Safety Club boys who were seldom seen operating by daylight. They directed traffic and guarded parked cars at all night events. The nocturnal organization is exclusive — any sophomore, junior, or senior may join if voted in by old members.

● Eight ham radio enthusiasts, directed by Donald Lindsey, industriously strove for amateur radio-operator's licenses through numerous high-frequency activities of Radio Club. Familiarization with diverse transmitting procedures was achieved through educational excursions to nearby broadcasting stations.

● "Get your fingers out of that press!" cried Walter Dudley, stressing to his ten indispensable Print Clubbers advantages of having all ten fingers. Requests for football and basketball programs, play tickets, programs, advertisements, and booster tags, provided the 80 necessary service letter hours.

Printers, Librarians, and Electricians Demonstrate Practical Technical Know-how

● "Books! More books! Space! More space! Books! Space! Yea, bookworms!" cried hopeful library workers, anticipating improved facilities when new library building is constructed sometime in the future. Junior librarians are unique, for they are not only an organization, but receive one-fourth of a grade point credit for their helpful services. New books, magazines, and newspapers added to stock augmented total number of books to formidable 7,300, keeping 17 helpers, 15 assistants, and 2 typists busy under guidance of librarian Minnie Bishop, who bustled around directing the constant search of the shelves.

● Theodore Hunt's five light crew boys held rafter permits—carte blanches enabling them to reveal simian instincts and clamber about gym rafters to raise and lower baskets for basketball games. They met demands of May Fete, set up lights for formal dances, assemblies and performances in Whitmer auditorium, simulating scenes from H. G. Wells as they controlled lights at enormous panel of switches and levers. Newest equipment was "follow spots"—movable spotlights whose beams followed performers about the stage. Block 'C' service letters provided concrete reward for 100-hour services rendered.

Artists Provide Posters, Decorations

● Midst the hustle and bustle of painting huge stained glass window backdrop for Christmas assembly, weary Art Club daubers rushed to complete multitudes of Christmas Dance posters. Painting bright Christmas scenes on windows of a downtown establishment, members competed for prizes amounting to seventy-five dollars, eventually to be used toward Art Club scholarship. Between service projects, the palette wielders welcomed numerous festive occasions during the year. Resting temporarily from artistic service, the young artists, under adviser Helen McDaniels, traveled to Laguna Art Gallery to view works of the masters, wondered at the casualness of L. A. Art Center School, and puzzled at contemporary art in Chaffey Art Exhibit. Displaying spirit of benevolence, they collected clothing for needy Arizona Navajos under prexy P. Thompson.

F. McKinney, L. Gavette, and E. Thompson painstakingly daub paint on one portion of scenery for Christmas assembly. Due to height of scenery it had to be painted lengthwise.

T-SQUARE MASTERS

Draftsmen Perfect Engineering Skills

● Tomorrow's ultra-modern homemakers will be happier because of the comprehensive knowledge of blueprints and architectural planning provided by active functions of Engineering Club. Diligently wielding complicated drafting equipment—protractors, compasses, and T-squares, engineering clubbers created airplanes, engines, houses, and machinery—all on thrifty, economical small scale. Organized to further interest in drafting and engineering field, the club is open to students having completed one year of drafting. Forty members undertook projects, constructively working toward 60-hour service letter requirement. Adviser, Bill Ashmore, shepherded them through the Northrup Aeronautical Plant, General Motors Corporation, and Packard Bell radio and television plant, where they found inspiration for further pint-sized projects.

B. Buffum pauses to contemplate what she could have done wrong, while D. Garrett tries again. Other members seem completely enthralled in work.

● Colton High's youthful contribution to the $64,000 Question era consisted of 35 alert students with a goal of fostering higher scholarship standards and broader service ideas. Wordly wise seniors and docile under classmen, under administration of complete junior cabinet, discovered that overloaded activity schedules created a meeting attendance problem. The youthful intellectuals relaxed alert minds by escaping into lands of fantasy and adventure at Disneyland, and Pomona Fair trip diverted them temporarily from educational pursuits. Stage-shy members conceded traditional Lincoln Day assembly to sponsor American Legion Essay finals. Novitiate and Life Membership pins brought recognition for long terms of membership, and mid-semester distinguished life member veterans of Scholarship Society were: L. Kirkpatrick, M. Beeson, M. Owen, and B. Roberts. Piloting the teenage prodigies were Tressie Truesdall, O. McNeil Arnold, and Charles Graser.

● Strains of "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" were murdered thoroughly by miserable Latin Club slaves rolling peanuts down steps under Spartan commands of ruthless second year Senators who were clad in their mothers old sheet togas. Difficulty of finding meeting time which did not conflict with others kept members delightedly looking forward to an "exciting year" of four meetings and two banquets. Laugh special of year was meeting scheduled for revision of constitution whose existence few even knew. Adviser Helen Borrego's students of Roman lore transformed Colton cafeteria into Roman villa for their annual social climax, Latin slave sale and elaborate banquet. During cozy after-school congregations in Mrs. Borrego's room, Latinites ordered new pins for officers and determined just why extracurricular minded members were always so busy on every Monday, every Tuesday, every Wednesday, every Thursday, and almost every Friday.

WIND, BRASS, WOOD

Marching, Concert, and Studio Bands Co-ordinate Combined Musical Talent

K. Reynolds, prancing Drum Majorette, practices stretching on the front lawn. One step ahead of the band, she strutted in tails at all parades and football games.

● Emitting snappy fortissimos and diminuendos, 65 marching band members tramped through '55-'56 parade season, encouraged by band maestro, Vincent Moats. Hailing from Virginia, Mr. Moats was confronted with a meager 27 musicians first quarter after class "C" restrictions diminished the group. The humiliated 27 valiantly elevated themselves to performing status. Their tone quality and straight ranks secured second place at Huntington Beach for Colton's brass, winds, and percussion. Other smooth performances included Santa Claus Parade and Maytime Band Parade at National City. High stepper, Karen Reynolds, set the pace as head majorette, while the instrumentalists worked toward 90-hour service letters.

● Concert band members learned arts of rhythm and harmonics from director Vincent Moates, while popular and bop-pish beats were produced by studio band, in its initial year. String instrument players were educated in classical melodies; violins, cellos, and violas formed nucleus of string ensemble, also newly initiated.

● Ensemble brought an enthusiastic deluge of applause from spectators with classical tastes at Musicale Extraordinaire. Conscientious 90-hour performers received service letters for Eymphonic services rendered, and the three musical bodies entered regional festival competition against high schools of immediate area.

● Forty-eight lettermen braved gruesome terrors of fabled initiation to enter Lettermen Club. The 'C' letter winners accepted responsibility of spotless appearance of Whitmer Auditorium by maintaining watchful vigil for gum-chewers, paper throwers, and litterbugs. Winning appreciation of faculty men, they kept anxious patrons from invading gym at basketball games, and served as time-keepers at home field and track events. Believing that theirs was an undefeated club basketball team, they played practice games, gaily oblivious of the fact that no brave clubs could be found to oppose them except HI-Y. M. Baer guided destinies of crew, and Norm Robison, president; B. Boteler, vice-president; C. Baxter, secretary-treasurer; and G. Schwengel, sergeant-at-arms, occupied executive positions. Eliminating audience's chances for snacks during assemblies in Whitmer Auditorium, they initiated check booth for sack lunches.

FFA began winning streak at Victorville winning trophy for best swine display. R. Harris exhibited three Grand Champions at Pomona and Victorville fairs. Colton chapter swept up numerous awards, winning Best Sheep Display trophy and two barn certificates; Roger and Dale Cooley both copped showmanship trophies. D. Cooley exhibited sales Grand Champion steer selling for $1,150 ("That ain't no bull!"). Colton went on to Indio to win the Sweepstake trophy for second consecutive year. They further enjoyed a dance at Riverside, and University of Redlands Teachers' Day. Advisers E. Ruth White and Joe Lash inspired the 26 future instructors with necessity for mental vigor and wholesome personalities.

● "Double, double toil and trouble, fire burn and cauldron bubble," chanted Catering Clubbers, preparing sample meals and serving at teachers' luncheons once a month. Eleven hard-working cuisine artists received service letters as reward for working 370 hours. Nutrition-wise members learned importance of well-balanced meals, good cooking techniques, and clever table arrangements under supervision of Mary Anderson and Edine Best.

● "There'll be some changes made," chanted energetic stage crew beavers. Chagrined members readily accustomed selves to spur-of-moment stage conversions and last-minute scenery constructions. John Evers supervised building of props for varied school productions as fifteen boys pursued 90-hour service letter goals.

● "Get out those old, old, records," could rightly be tagged Audio Visual Aids Club theme. Stan Treitman's boys spun platters, projected movies and kept unpredictable public address system free of squawks and growls. The 25 members showed 40,000 feet of film, striving for 150 hours necessary for letters. Prexy, Steve Reeves, and members welcomed purchase of new projector for Whitmer Auditorium.

● Answering call to serve humanity, six girls magnanimously donated Study Hall periods to the cause of splitting headaches and excruciating toe-nail pains. The six femmes who served as Nurse Ila Hull's medical aids mastered complex arts of applying bandages, iodine, and keeping files up-to-date. In recognition of service, each girl received four citizenship points per quarter.

Pepper Bough Reporters Become Turners of Adept Phrases During

● Pepper Bough's paper heart was kept ticking by editor Walker, diligent cubs, adviser C. D. Beeson, efficient page editors, and the results of "push, push, push." Tyro reporters learned essentials of publishing a paper, and efforts were rewarded by favorable results of national contests. Experienced newspaperman Sam Feldman arrived at mid-term as student teacher. Forensic ability supplemented journalistic know-how as U. of R.'s Yearbook Day featured adviser "CDB," and Journalism Day included panel leaders M. Walker, M. Beeson, and W. Vaughan. Enjoying selves away from clutches of room 137, reporters drove to Los Angeles and toured Bindex Co., Los Angeles Engraving Co., attended USC Journalism Day and Pasadena Playhouse production "White Sheep of the Family."

Sugar-Coated Dynamite Provide Eyeful For Wide-awake Males

● Forty glorified "Dog Faced Soldiers", members of Crimsonettes Drill Team, tangled in tricky formations due to unsuccessful attempts to study chemistry and shorthand while marching stolidly through mud and gravel. Energetically exercising pedal extremities in dirty boots or decrepit tennis shoes, thirty-five girls managed to stand on their own two feet after 90 service-letter hours and six performances, under direction of Nancy Hamilton.

● Even in foulest of weather, when their mournful little Yellowjacket antennae wilted and three pair of socks wrinkled, Sherry McCanlies' flagtwirlers staunchly performed with band and drill team at parades and football games. Brief glimpses caught through rhythmic swirl of flags revealed well-trained group of eight, who attired in spotless maroon corduroy and official antennae of the Yellowjacket clan, marched toward 90-hour service letters.

Crimsonettes, counter clockwise: S. Griffiths, W. Meuser, J. Wolfe, G. Powell, L. Alton, C. Hyde, B. Murray, P. Schultz, J. Driskill, B. Ceizler, P. Russell, P. Griffiths, P. Baldridge, A. Norton, B. Songleaders execute a pretty pose, but they normally perform much better. L to r: C. Swank, A. Robohn, S. Maxwell, head songleader, R. Smith, B. Reasons.

● Five songleaders ignored drizzly fogs, near-zero weather, and playful water boys who splashed water as limbs turned a blue hue. Donning baggy letterman sweaters to maintain normal body temperature in frigid atmospheres, they complained sadly of "potato sack look" to understanding and patient adviser Sherry McCanlies.

● Crimson and Gold clad majorettes who smartly stepped, pranced prettily, and collectively collapsed were J. Claussen, N. Galloway, B. Gomes, and J. De Vore, coached and browbeaten by band director W. Vincent Moats.

Majorettes marched ahead of and missed being trampled by precision tempo band as they preceded them at football games and parades.

● Three gyrating, vivacious yell leaders, supervised by Sherry McCanlies, bolstered ebullient spirits of spectators at football and basketball games. New outfits blossomed forth, as male members John Valle and Wayne Jensen, appeared in albino sweaters, flame-hued mandarin collar shirts, yellow denims, and wedge-sole saddle oxfords. Nancy Rodgers sported white sweater and crisp crimson skirt.

J. Claussen, J. DeVore and N. Galloway, erstwhile band majorettes, break away from the old tradition of "sitting for a picture," and assume natural positions.

Senior N. Rodgers bravely supports those two flying men, head yell leader J. Valle, and W. Jensen, yell leader. It isn't every day you see such exuberance.

Pulling upset of the year, Millermen tallied in last 2 minutes on 3rd TD by K. Hubbs on 41 yard run for 27-21 final tally. Jackets rounded out season with 54-14 rout over Fontana to end rampage. K. Hubbs' 21 point performance paced 8-touchdown attack. J. Ganino and D. Van Voorhis also scored a pair of TDs while C. Carreon tallied once. Highest yearly honors were garnered by Keith Hubbs, taking all-CIF third string, all-CBL back, and Gridiron Club most valuable player award. E. Young, C. Baxter, and C. Carreon gained all-league. E. ● The varsity team liked it ever-so-much when Coach Miller decided to run the team through recover-the-ball drills on the muddy final day, extra spice being added when Manager G. Kurlak soaked the already wet field with bucket after bucket of water. George also employed the water bucket in helping celebrate the Pacific victory by drenching Coach Lyon, gratis . . . When white flakes wafted through the B locker room one day, close examination proved it to be not snow or dandruff, but D. Ramirez's foot powder . . . The B's also recall Manager H. King's unique towel distribution method—hanging from the rafters and bombarding the showering squad with towels . . . In an inexpensive but rough piece of dental surgery, T. Pray was forced to part with a front tooth when J. Ganino's helmet found mark.

"Ho dee har, har, har," laugh assistants Lyon and Lash, as head grid mentor Miller skeptically tries to figure out the funny angle.

"Unsanitary, but good," says J. Ganino, voted most improved player, as he finishes second bucket of water . . . "Wait till the play's over, Dan," says Coach Lyon, as Coach Miller restrains anxious D. Martinez.

● Remembered events of the '55 gridiron season ranged from spectator view to unheralded locker room trivia. Las Vegas' brand new all-tile shower rooms overwhelmed varsity men on Nevada trip where $18.00 one-armed bandit profit made C. Craigmiles happy. The team fared less well on the field . . . After kickoff, J. Ganino watched ball bounce in front of him, then as Wildcat player received it said, "Gosh, maybe I should have picked it up." . . . R. Doty learned the hard way how to spell "block". After missing dummy in practice, Coach Lyon ordered dumbfounded Ron to "B-L-O-C-K!" Replied Doty, "You mean, look?" . . . J. Matteson's biggest problem was not technique, but equipment; for the Berdoo game, "Elephant" forgot his entire uniform.

B's Split Season

● Coaches M. Baer and R. Beseda's "B" pigskinners enjoyed best season since joining league, broke even with 3-win, 3-loss, 2-tie slate. Opening with 19-6 victory over Barstow in only non-league encounter, Babyjackets dropped initial CBL tilt to Redlands, 25-6, but bounced back to battle San Bernardino to scoreless tie. Finding victory with 13-6 win over Chaffey, locals suffered rough going in next game in 40-0 loss to Riverside. Pacific eked out 6-6 tie, Pomona was supreme 21-0 and Babyjackets edged Fontana 7-6 in season curtain dropper. Co-Captains B. Strauch and B. Kiss led in scoring column, while K. Hubbs spearheaded offensive attack.

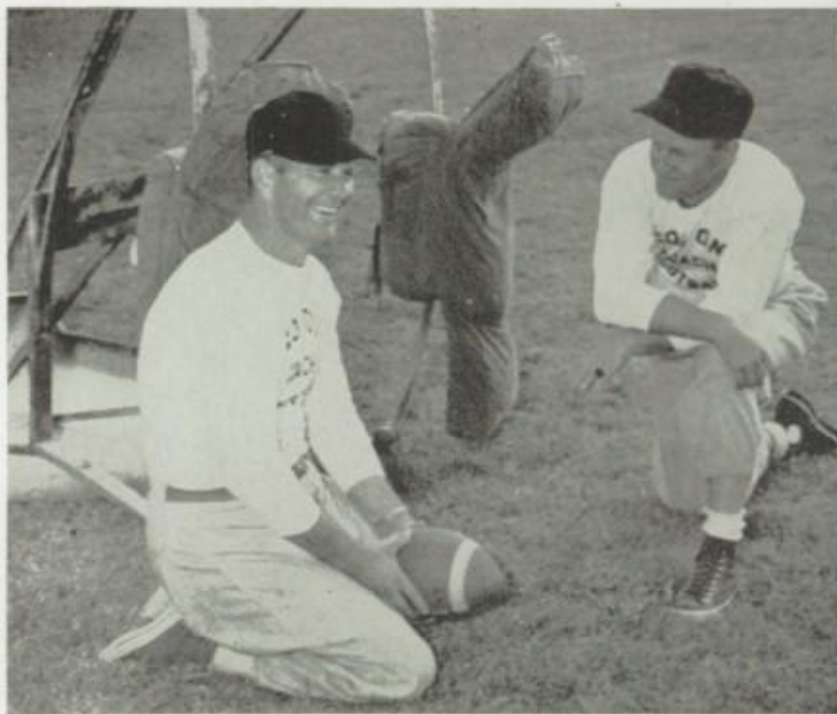

Frosh Win Pair

● Under Mentors T. Spencer and F. Quinonez, Frosh Jackets compiled 2-5-1 record. Ninth graders downed Redlands Jr. High, 9-6, and Yucaipa Jr. High, 6-0 for only conquests and fought Freemont Jr. High to 6-6 deadlock. Co-Captain end Larry Carson was high man in scoring department while counterpart H. Beach anchored line play. R. Hubbs sparked back-field punch.

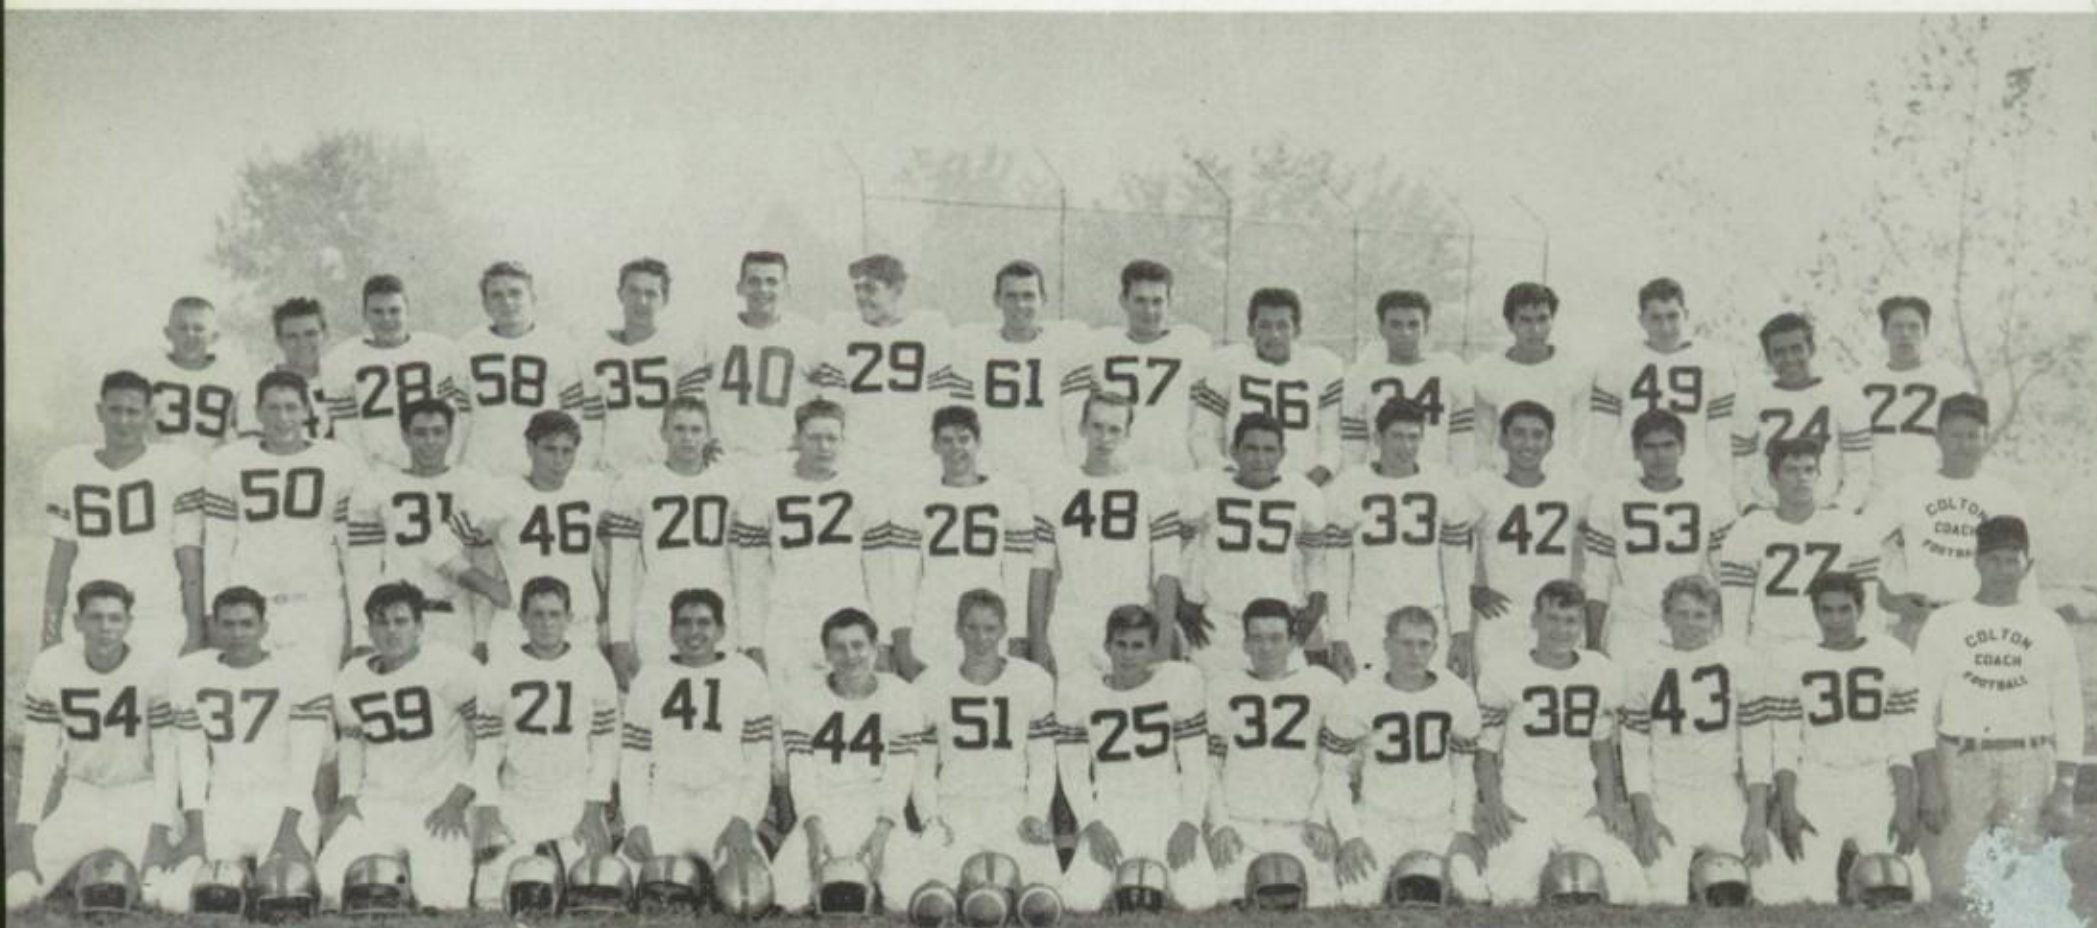

J. V.'s Go Winless

● Although losing all encounters, Coach C. Graser's junior varsity eleven had several hard fought games. Initial two points of season were scored by Riversider as he ran over wrong goal for two Colton points. T. Pray and G. Roller were offensive leaders.

UPSET-MINDED FIVE

Hot and Cold Cagers Hit

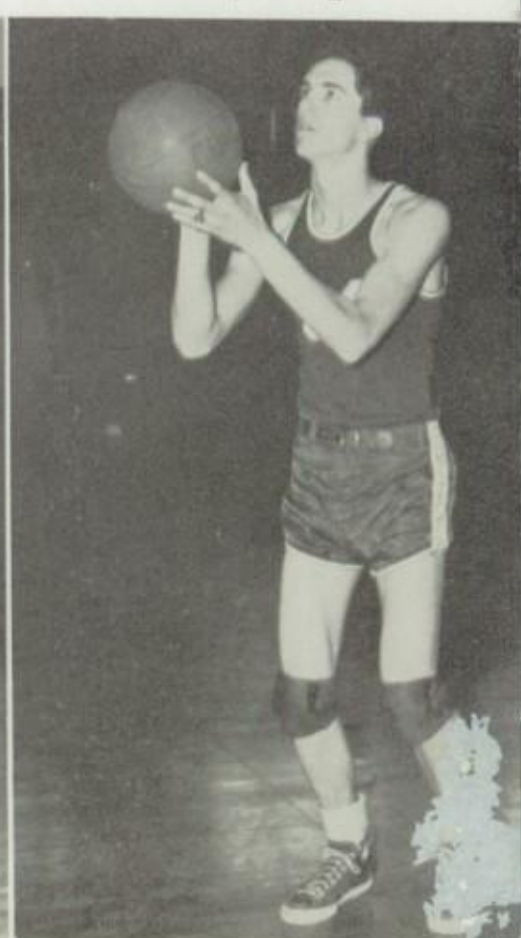

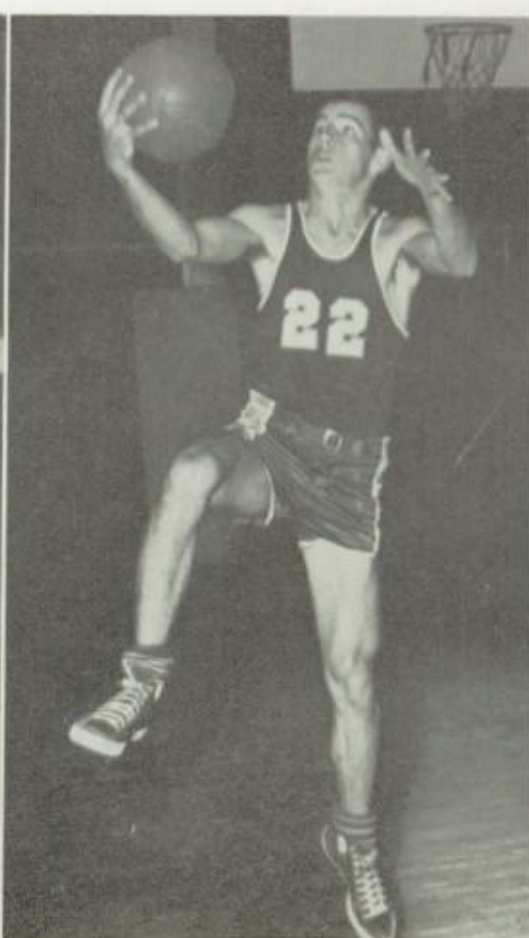

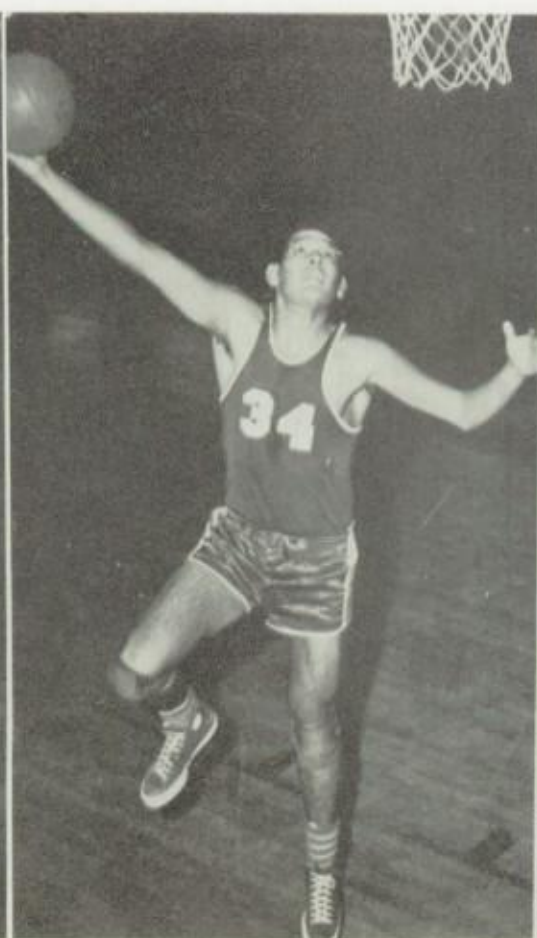

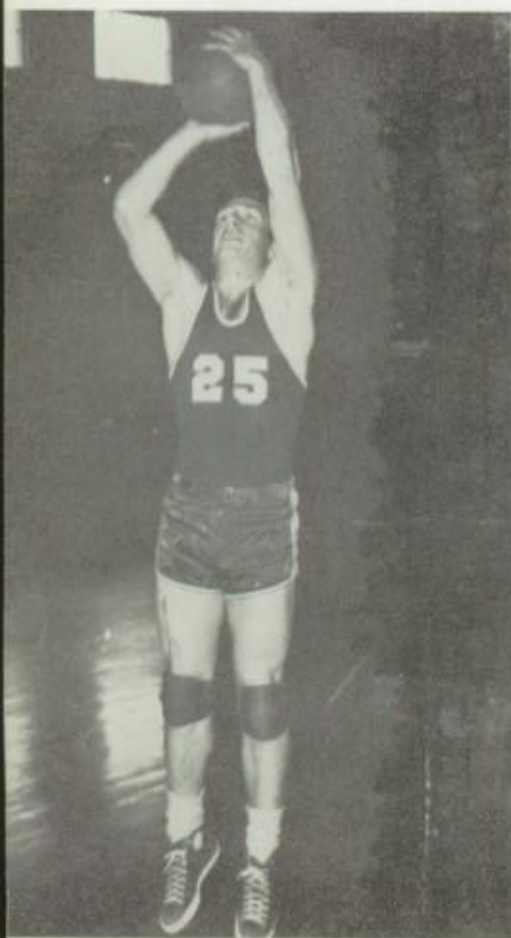

● Suffering ups and downs, Coach Tom Morrow's A hoopsters finished out year with upset of Chaffey to ruin Tigers chances for league crown. After 5-3 record in pre-league schedule, Jackets moved to semi-finals of Chino tourney before bowing to Riverside, despite Hubbs' 21-point performance. Antelope Valley felt the Yellowjackets' stinger first and was followed by Anaheim, Norton AFB, and Banning twice. In tourney, Hub City crew downed Escondido in opener and Chaffey in quarter-finals. Riverside once again proved superior in the initial CBL meeting of the two clubs. Redlands, champions of loop, also reigned 53-42. Jackets then trekked to Upland where Robison bucketed 19 to drop Fontana, hampered by no gym. Red Devil stalling tactics proved too much 40-31, but Morrowmen bounced back to hand Berdoo crushing blow to championship hopes with E. Young's 15-point performance pacing upset. In third overtime N. Robison drove in on underneath basket type lay-up for twenty-first point to drop Pacific 53-50. Chaffey revenged earlier loss 57-49 on home court.

Pomona and San Bernardino were victorious as twelve-point performances by Hubbs and Robison respectively were tops. Pacific felt axe 66-33 as hardwooders followed gridironers in final game surge. Chaffey was downed 68-65 in final encounter with L. Williams exhibiting outstanding individual performance of season, hitting 25. K. Hubbs and N. Robison shared season leadership in scoring department with 8.7 average for 26 tilts. Each tallied 228 total markers while E. Young, L. Williams, and K. Hethcoat also meshed in over 100 digits. ● Under the guidance of the fifth mentor in as many seasons, B cagers chalked up 8-6 CBL record with hot and cold spells. Coach Hank Balke, down from the University of Redlands, gave special college techniques to Babyjackets. Opening season in San Bernardino tourney, finishing third behind hosts and Riverside, and advancing to semi-finals at Pacific Tournament, later highlighted non-league activity. Although dropping some less important games, locals proved to be spoilers by downing 2 of 3 teams which finished in tie for league crown and barely missed edging third. In league opener Riverside felt the Babyjackets sting 36-27 as did Redlands 35-33 in second round play. Only a last second basket gave San Bernardino narrow 32-31 victory. Frosh K. Hubbs picked all-tourney at San Bernardino, spearheaded attack with 9.2 average. Co-captains B. Kiss, R. Jackson, and T. Rose paced tight defensive club.

B Captain B. Kiss lets go with a one-hander while protected by league-leading scorer J. Bradshaw of Chaffey, turned to defense. J. Doty and R. Luna rush in for possible rebound.

● Sweeping first annual Colton High 'C' tournament and finishing schedule with 16-3 slate, Jacket C's, mentored by H. Mosiman, proved top quintet, capturing eight straight before bowing to Anaheim, Redlands Jr. High, and Berdoo later. The mighty mites thundered over Colton frosh and San Bernardino, Chino, Pacific, Colton, Highland, Yucaipa, Redlands, and Rialto Jr. High heavyweight quintets. They coasted to 44-19, 29-27, and 23-13 victories over Fontana, Hawthorne, and Fullerton in tourney. A. Ochoa dominated with 9.2 average, 174 points; J. Gonzales seconded with 8.5 average, 162 points; followed by Captain N. Lynch, 6.7 average, 127 points. G. Kurlak led free shotsters with .573 percentage, with 15 of 26 attempts. Ochoa and R. Reynoso were named to tournament all-star team.

● Starting slow but finishing with eight out of nine victories, Jacket D cagers posted 10-6 record over Jr. High and other D quintets. Captain J. Delgado led scorers with 10-point average and E. Lambeth's 8.3 rated as second. Ceizler hit best percentage from free shot circle with 72.2 per cent. Defeating every team except San Bernardino, who was supreme 54-3 in initial outing, they held the Cards to 36-27 in final encounter.

● With one of the largest squads of any Jacket team, Coach T. Spencer's frosh team practiced techniques for future action with varsity fives. Playing most contests against junior high fives of local areas as well as CBL frosh clubs, ninth graders bounced Arrowview of San Bernardino and Redlands, but bowed to Emerson of Pomona, Chaffey, Yucaipa, and Colton C's. L. Hernandez paced scoring in early season but call to B's in middle of year spread point-making evenly between D. Mills, L. Baxter, N. Seinturier, and J. Granado, for remainder of schedule.

● Junior varsity cagers under the guidance of mentor E. Kovack had ups and downs in regular style with lack of players hurting in pinches. D. Johnson, F. Chaves, R. Grider, and B. Perez, led Jackets to 9 victories. C. Krueger tallied 24 points in early season game in less than three full quarters of action as the seasons best effort of 62-39 in downing Pacific. Krueger carried 18 points average when leaving in middle of season. They rolled over Antelope Valley 46-26, Anaheim 44-39, Chaffey 45-39, Fontana 43-29, Redlands 36-34 and San Bernardino 49-48. J. V.'s also provided excellent competition for varsity in practice games.

● Aided by their newly fixed-up field, the varsity baseball team took second place in Pomona Tournament to top yearly efforts. Guided by mentor R. Beseda, in his fourth year at the helm, Colton diamond men carried over-all 15-9 record. C. Carreon chalked up initial shut out in the opening game, 3-0 over Escondido and also defeated Paramount and Huntington Beach 3-0 and 13-6 in pre-season tilts. B. Perez huddled 2-1 win over Orange. Only loss was 5-4 to Chino. In tournament, Jackets rolled past Bonita, 5-2; Chaffey, 6-1; El Rancho, 9-4; and Santa Barbara, 13-0; before bowing to Downey, 4-0, in Championship tilt. L. Flores and P. Carrasco were named All-Tournament at left field and third base respectively.

K. Hubbs lays down perfect sacrifice bunt to advance runner in Fontana game.

Co-captain C. Carreon streaks past first after beating out infield single.

● Riverside eked out 5-3 victory on pair of homers, but Colton bounced back to shut out Redlands 6-0 with Carreon on the hill. Weakened by sickness and injuries, Jackets were downed in next two tilts 12-3 by Chaffey and narrowly 1-0 by Pacific. Carreon displayed top power of season with 421 foot drive against Chaffey. Williams and Perez combined efforts to edge Fontana 6-5 in second round, whereupon Perez came back to stop Riverside 9-4. Perez set down Redlands 7-0 to complete white-wash of season over Terriers in two games but Pacific was superior 7-1. San Bernardino fell 17-10 in a slugfest as D. Sharp posted first CBL victory.

Speed Mentors; Local Spikers Rise to Greater Heights With Each New Loop Encounter

● With the addition of a second coach, Jacket track teams presented terrific challenge to existing CUHS records and other CBL crews in dual meets. Coming in second in triangular dual meet with Coachella and Pacific, locals then bounced Pomona Catholic and Victor Valley in non-league contests. Coaches M. Baer and J. Lash's squad belted Fontana and Pacific in CBL dual contests and bowed to powerful Pomona and Redlands as well as losing a narrow 54-49 decision to San Bernardino. N. Robison was only Colton man to place in Huntington Beach meet, as he was in seven-way tie for first with 6-feet-1-inch jump; Robison also captured second in Chaffey meet with 6-feet-3 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch outstanding high jump to also set new Colton mark. A. Ochoa placed third in mile with best effort of year. D. Seinturier re-wrote records in 220 with 22.5 seconds and equalled 22 years standing record of 10.0 in 100 yard dash. B. Kiss established new B high hurdles mark of 9.2 seconds, Seinturier bettered both 100 and 220 records in that class also. F. Nieves cracked C 660 time. Only other record to go with the tide was the shot put distance which was bettered three times for 51 feet 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch new record.

B. Kiss and K. Carter hit low hurdles in final tune-up for CBL finale.

Illness Spells Cross Country Downfall In Season and CBL Meets

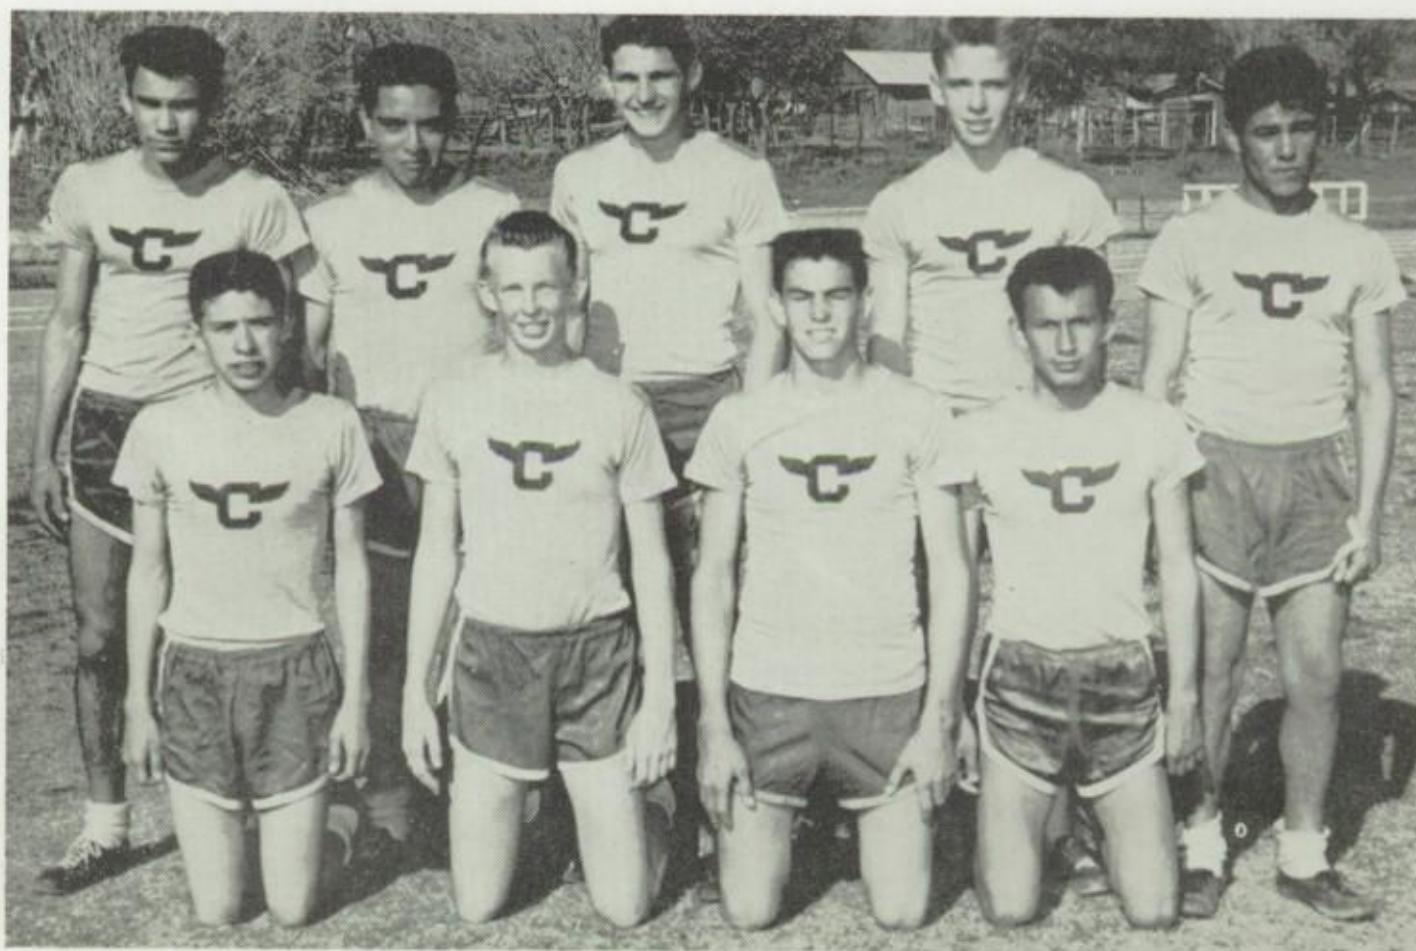

A. Ochoa, cross country captain, garners first at Perris Hill Park, as F. Chavez finishes closely behind.

● "Pant, wheeze, cough, sput," were familiar sounds to Coach Harold Mosiman's ears as he coached his cross country squad to split four dual meets and place fourth in Mt. San Antonio meet. With several key runners absent the team fell to fifth in the league meet. Paced by Captain Al Ochoa who failed to stand out in league meet because of recent illness, Jacket long distance men defeated Pacific and San Bernardino in practice, but fell to Riverside and Redlands. Sophomore D. Villapando led Colton in CBL run in tenth place with F. Chavez, R. Robles, J. Valle, and Ochoa, the other scorers. High point man for the year was Ochoa, followed by Robles, Villapando, Chavez, Valle, and F. Nieves, varsity letter winners. J. V. "C" winners were T. Farr, S. Bernal, R. Jackson, B. Kump, T. ● Emanating from the new courts was the familiar "ba-doink, ba-doink, ba-doink, ba-doink," of tennis balls flying back and forth. This year, coach William Ashley's tennis squad won their first CBL meet in many years, against Fontana, 7-2. Corona also fell twice before the Colton rackets in practice meets. Besides the courts, the top twenty players were issued new sweat suits, an improvement that was welcome. Standouts for the varsity this year were captain Don Johnson, Steve Bernal, and Don Sunderland.

D. Sunderland and S. Bernal, first doubles team, posted five consecutive victories at beginning of season for best performance in recent years.
